AUTO VICTIM THROWN ALIVE INTO RIVER

CHARGE OF MURDER MAY BE MADE

District Attorney Albert F. Burke of Plymouth county said today that if those who drove the automobile which struck William McFadden, whose body was found in the border of Skimmilk river, at Bridgewater, could be apprehended, there was no doubt a charge of murder would be brought against them.

This statement followed the discovery that though McFadden was fatally injured when the automobile struck him, he was still alive when those in the car alighted, dragged him fifty feet along the road and dumped him into the water. Drowning hastened, if it did not cause, his death.

The police throughout the State are looking for the automobile, a red touring car. The Brockton police last night caught a glimpse of the machine, they believe, and they pursued it toward Stoughton. It bore no numbers, and by its superior speed was able to escape.

The police have the number, however, of a Dorchester car; and with the help of the Dorchester police they are seeking to locate this machine and find where it was at the time the accident occurred.

An autopsy was today performed on the body of McFadden, by Medical Examiner A. E. Paine, Associate Medical Examiner J. J. McNamara and Dr. C. H. Fullerton.

WAS TERRIBLY BRUISED.

The Medical Examiner kept secret his finding, reporting it to the District Attorney.

But through the Bridgewater police it was established that McFadden was still alive at the time his body was thrown into the water where it was found.

The Bridgewater police thought it possible McFadden might have been shot; and it was learned that the Med-

DOCTOR DENIES HE WAS TO WED SUICIDE NURSE

Muriel McLean Burnes.

Dr. George H. Nettleton, the New Haven dentist, to whom Mrs. Muriel McLean Burnes wrote of her intention before committing suicide at Springfield, Friday night, returned to his home at New Haven today after a hunting trip. Dr. Nettleton denied that he was engaged to Mrs. Burnes, who was a nurse at the Tallitha Cumi Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

"There have been some published statements which I wish to correct, although I would rather not talk about it," he said.

"I was never engaged to Mrs. Burnes. If she had made a will in my favor I never knew of it. She certainly never intimated such a thing to me. Neither did she make me any valuable presents.

"I know her husband and through him met her. We were all good friends at one time. Her husband lost his health some years ago and went to a hospital for mental trouble. If I could be of service at that time to him or her I certainly felt it my duty to do so, and am glad if I could have been. I knew that she was morose a time ago, but knew none of the details. She did not confide in me and there was no reason why she should have done so.

"As soon as I received her letter on Saturday telling me that she intended to commit suicide, I communicated with Judge Nicholson of Bridgeport, a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Burnes. He told me after he learned that she was adead, that he was going to Springfield at once to take charge of the remains, and he did so.

"At the time I talked with Judge Nicholson, I assured him that if I could be of any service in the case I would be glad to assist him. He told me that he did not see how I could. He knew the family affairs well, he said, and would let me know if I could help him.

"I had for two weeks arranged to go on a hunting trip Saturday to remain two days. I told Judge Nicholson and he advised me to go ahead, which I did. I have heard nothing more from the case except what I have seen in the newspapers."

The Boston News Bureau prints today, in a New York letter from "Adams," the following statement:

"I do not know how far Boston people will believe it, but New York interests say that the abandonment of the political field for the financial has proven thus far profitable for ex-Governor Foss of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston.

"I hear that Foss has added through the market $2,000,000 to his fortune and that the ex-Mayor of Boston in Bethlehem and other war stocks has made $1,500,000."

Allston Woman a Suicide

BULGARS BOMBARD NISH

DEAD FROM GAS; BABY SAVED

Seated in a chair in the kitchen of her home, with her little three weeks' old infant lying on the floor at her feet, the body of Mrs. Adele M. Sauzedde, forty-one, was found today by her husband, Claude Sauzedde, a mechanical engineer of No. 1082 Commonwealth avenue, Allston. Gas was flowing freely from a gas stove, and the windows and doors of the kitchen were tightly closed. The baby will live, but the mother was beyond medical aid when found.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the husband was awakened by the odor of gas. He traced it to the kitchen door which he found closed. Opening the door he saw the mother sitting in a chair. On the floor at her feet lay the child faintly crying.

Sauzedde turned off the gas and threw open the doors and windows. Dr. Frank J. Sexton, who lives a few doors away, was summoned. He found the body of Mrs. Sauzedde still warm, and immediately ordered a pulmotor from the plant of the Edison Company. Meanwhile he went to work at artificial respiration and other methods until the machine arrived.

After the arrival of the pulmotor, assisted by Dr. Herbert L. Johnson of Brookline, and the family physician of the Sauzedde family, Dr. Albert D. Yorke of Jamaica Plain, Dr. Sexton worked for over an hour and a half on the body of Mrs. Sauzedde without reviving her.

That the baby failed to meet the fate of the mother is due to the fact that it rolled off the pillow in her lap where she was holding it, onto the floor, thus escaping the deadly fumes of the gas. When picked up, it was found to have a slight contusion on the left side of the head, received when the mother became unconscious, causing the muscles to relax and allowing the child to slip from her lap to the floor.

According to the police, the woman probably committed suicide. It was learned she had of late been despondent and had talked despairingly to her two other children, a boy of five and a girl of twelve.

30 MOTOR BOATS ARE BURNED

Thirty motor boats ranging in size from sixty-footers to twenty-footers and valued, as estimated by the police, between $25,000 and $30,000 were destroyed this afternoon by a two-alarm fire in the boat yards of Fred L. Smith, near Colter Beach, at the foot of Freeport street, Dorchester.

The fire started in one of the number of small one-story sheds used for the storage of boats during the Winter. Mathew Fay of No. 19 Norfolk street, Dorchester, owner of the twenty-two-foot motor boat "Seal," was drawing the supply of gasoline out of the tank of his boat preparatory to putting it into storage for the season.

Fay, according to the story he told the police, was not smoking and had no matches about him, but as he was drawing the gasoline out of the tank it burst into flame. It quickly spread to his boat and in a short time the entire shed was in flames.

Upon the arrival of the fire department, the flames had spread to three of the sheds and looked so threatening that a second alarm was sent in by District Chief Walter McLean. With the arrival of the second alarm apparatus, the fire was quickly brought under control.

Among the boats destroyed by the fire was one owned by Lotta Crabtree of Atlantic, named "Tip." This boat is a sixty-foot motor boat and is said to be worth in the neighborhood of $6,000. Another boat which was lost was the "Rosie P.," owned by Rose Pitonoff, the swimming champion.

Lieutenant Radford Moses, commanding the submarine K-2, testified at the court martial of Rear Admiral William N. Little at the Charlestown Navy Yard today that if he had been senior inspector at the time the K-2 was put in commission, he would not have been satisfied with the batteries in the boat.

Lieutenant Moses was the first witness at the trial and the crux of his testimony came in the following passage:

Q.—If you had been senior inspector at the time the K-2 was put in commission, would you have been satisfied with the batteries so far as workmanship was concerned? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because I had no definite knowledge that lead drops (such as were found in some battery cells) did not exist in other cells. They did not belong there. They were certainly not doing any good.

Q.—Did you officially recommend against accepting the K-2? A.—I neither recommended officially the acceptance nor the rejection of the boat.

Q.—In your official business with Admiral Little, did you find the Admiral approachable? A.—He was not very approachable. Every time I went to the Admiral on official business he made me feel that I had to have everything at my finger tips.

...TH PARTIES CLAIM VICTORY TOMORROW

Today is the day of the prophet. Tomorrow the voter has his say.

In Massachusetts, in addition to the full State ticket to be chosen, the electorate renders its verdict on suffrage amendment, the tax, homestead and old age pension amendments.

In the city of Boston voters pass on the recall of Mayor Curley.

Candidates and managers of the two leading parties today expressed the usual "feelings of confidence" accompanied by predictions of victory.

The chief interest centres in the contest between Governor Walsh and McCall. The Governor today expressed great confidence in his re-election, and was borne out by Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the Democratic State Committee, who predicted that event by a majority of 30,000. Governor Walsh said:

WALSH'S STATEMENT.

I feel confident that my efforts in the cause of the people will be approved by a decisive plurality. I have gone into every part of the State giving an account of my stewardship and definitely declaring myself upon the real, vital issues of the campaign.

The Republican candidate has adopted the policy of silence upon almost all the issues which directly concern the people in this canvass and has discussed the problems of national administration, which the voters will have opportunity to deal with in the next national campaign.

The Republican machine, true to the methods of the old reactionary days, evidently prefers to attempt to evade the issues and trust to the campaign fund. But, however useful its fund may be in the organization of demonstrations and torch-light parades, and the employment of paid workers to influence public opinion at the last moment, the voters cannot be deceived.

Men of all parties know that I have kept faith with the people and that my definite promises for future action are based upon faithful performances. Men of all parties are rallying to my support because they are unwilling that the forces of invisible government which have dominated legislation should invade the executive offices and hold the whole State government in their grasp.

When I started out in this campaign I realized that I was to battle against all of the powers and resources of the privilege-seeking interests but I was not dismayed. For as I went from place to place, often traveling after midnight to speak to great outpourings of people, it was the consciousness that I was serving a great cause that has given me strength to carry this contest to a successful issue. For what can be a greater cause than preserving to the people their powers in their own government.

SAYS M'CALL WILL WIN.

Candidate McCall and the Republican leaders are equally sure of victory. Chairman Thurston of the Republican State Committee says McCall will win by 25,000.

Both Republicans and Democrats agree that Shaw's strength is weakness for the Republicans.

Next to the gubernatorial contest the vote for suffrage is attracting the most attention. Tomorrow the suffragists plan a final and silent appeal at every polling booth in the State.

It will take the form of a woman bearing a banner which asks the voter to show his faith in the women of Massachusetts by voting "Yes." The "suffs" claim the state, but are chary of naming figures.

Mrs. Gertrude Halliday Leonard, chairman of the suffrage State campaign committee, said today:

SUFFRAGE VICTORY.

We "expect to win." A large number of men in different portions of the State, representing all classes of society, have been seen during the past few weeks by canvassers and other workers, and 70 per cent. of these men declared for equal suffrage. We feel that our prediction of a majority is therefore well founded. The influence of prominent men, leaders in politics, business and education, who are advocating equal suffrage, will tend to add substantially to the vote we poll.

"Although the result in New Jersey was, of course, regretted, it will not have a serious effect on the vote here, as Massachusetts men are far more independent of demagogues attempting political control.

Mrs. John Balch, president of Women's Anti-Suffrage Association, said:

ANTIS CLAIM BIG LEAD.

"I am willing to say this: We have won by 100,000 majority. All this enthusiasm for woman's suffrage has been mere enthusiasm, for it will not express itself at the polls.

"Men are thoroughly convinced that such a radical change in the electorate of Massachusetts would be a serious drawback. This is the vote which will be made tomorrow by men who may have hesitated, but they will make that vote at the polls telling vote against woman's suffrage. I never was so sure of anything as of this."

SEVEN STATES BESIDES MASSACHUSETTS HOLD ELECTIONS TOMORROW

Seven States besides Massachusetts will hold elections tomorrow—New York, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio and Mississippi.

In four States Governors are to be elected — Massachusetts, Maryland, Kentucky and Mississippi. In six States—New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Kentucky and Mississippi—State Legislatures in whole or in part are to be chosen; and in five States—Massachusetts, New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania and Ohio—important constitutional issues are to be decided.

These constitutional questions are the dominant issues in most of the States, embracing such fundamental matters as woman suffrage, municipal home rule, prohibition, State income taxes, referendum plans and lesser reforms.

The woman suffrage question will be voted upon in Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania. In point of population these States will furnish the greatest test to which the woman suffrage issue has ever been submitted in the United States.

In these three States are 26,000,000 people, a fifth of the population of the country, and twice the population of the States in which women now have use of the ballot.

A big feature of the election to New York, in addition to that of woman suffrage, will be the question of adopting a new State constitution as revised by a recent State constitutional convention presided over by Elihu Root.

In Massachusetts voters will be called upon to decide also whether to give the Legislature authority to impose a tax on incomes and authority to take over land in rural districts for homesteads for those who may wish to substitute country for city life.

Kimball Will Be Salem Fire Chief

Chief Caulfield was appointed for six months and assumed his duties on March 15, but when the time was up he was persuaded to stay an additional two months. Captain Kimball will take charge on November 16.

POLICE HUNTING CRIMSON AUTO IN TRAGEDY

local Examiner did find bits of lead about the man's wounded head.

But these bits of lead were not bullets. They will prove valuable exhibits at the trial, if the car responsible for the tragedy is ever found.

District Attorney Parker's home is near the scene of McFadden's death. He said today, after hearing from Medical Examiner Paine:

"There is no doubt in my mind that a charge of murder will be brought if we can find the guilty persons."

McFadden was terribly injured by the blow of the automobile. As one man put it: "It was as though the top of his head had been sliced off with an ax. There was blood scattered all about where he was struck."

In spite of this terrible injury, however, it is asserted confidently that the man was alive when he was shoved into the water.

The police said today that the man was dragged fifty feet by the feet, from the spot where he was hit before being thrown into the water. They said they have found two men who heard a scream near the spot where the tragedy occurred at the time McFadden was struck.

It was the most atrocious tragedy of which autoists in Massachusetts have ever been guilty, in the opinion of the police heads. They characterized it as a cold-blooded and brutal proceeding from start to finish.

McFadden was slain by the death car while he was on a straight stretch of roadway. This, the police declared, made the case all the more heinous. McFadden, a farmhand, was walking along the Raynham road toward Cohasset. Down the straight road came the speed-mad autoists, driving their huge red car so swiftly that neither they nor their victim could escape the tragedy.

McFadden was struck and knocked more than a dozen feet.

FIND BODY OF VICTIM.

Where he fell a blood pool formed. The big red car stopped; the occupants dragged the body to a bridge nearby and dropped it over the rail into two or three feet of water. Then by scattering gravel they strove to obliterate the blood pool. But they were anxious to be away, their work was incompletely done. Calvin Pratt of Taunton came along in his car later, saw the blood pool, investigated—and discovered the body.

There was criticism today of the failure of nearby police authorities to take prompt action. Pratt telephoned the Taunton authorities, but they said the crime had been committed outside their jurisdiction. Edward L. Paradise came upon the body a little later, and telephoned to Brockton, but the Brockton authorities also declined to act on the ground they had no jurisdiction.

SAW CAR STOP ON BRIDGE.

The Bridgewater authorities found the body lying in a shallow part of Skimmilk River, at the edge of the bridge. They secured the identification of the body from farmers in the neighborhood and finally got a fair description of the car. Edward L. and Frank H. Paradise gave this description. Edward Paradise was the second man to find the body; and the story he told the police was this:

He and Frank Paradise were at work in a field a quarter of a mile from the spot where the crime was done.

They noticed the big red car, because it whirled into sight at high speed, then suddenly stopped on the bridge.

From where they stood it was not possible to see clearly, bushes somewhat obscuring the roadway. But they saw two persons alight from the car for a few minutes, then return to their seats.

The car then shot away, faster than ever, toward the business section of the town.

Watching a little later, they saw Calvin Pratt come along the Hockamock swamp road and stop by the bridge. When he presently went on their curiosity was aroused and Edward Paradise went to the spot and discovered the body in the shallow water.

He first telephoned to Brockton, then to Bridgewater.

Medical Examiner Paine was summoned. He inspected the body where it lay, then ordered its removal to the undertaking rooms.

In the dust of the road, bloodspots and footprints told the detailed story of the tragedy, showing where McFadden's body had been tossed by the car, where a pool of his blood had formed under his head, and where the boy had been dragged to the bridge and toppled over into the water.

STATE-WIDE ALARM.

The alarm was sent out over the State. Ordinarily it is considered almost hopeless to locate an automobile which chooses to run away after having killed a human being; but the fact that this machine was red gave the authorities hope.

Red cars are few, and it may be possible to require every red car in the State to account for its whereabouts at the time the tragedy occurred.

Walsh & Wisdom

People throughout the State who know of my high opinion of Governor Walsh and ex-Congressman McCall, ask me how I will vote Tuesday, and I answer I will vote for Mr. McCall:

He is the best all-round citizen I know of in public life today, for the people's public-servant job. For this reason alone I would vote for Mr. McCall even against Governor Walsh, the all-round good fellow public servant.

There is another reason:

David I. Walsh does not want the job. He emphatically refused to allow his name to be used for a third term. I know this. He gave to his friends and associates, with his refusal to run again, his good reasons for wanting to go back to his profession, and he stubbornly withheld his consent until his party leaders put gun to his head and insisted that he sacrifice himself. Even then he refused, until his good nature birthed a disconsolate—"O Hell, what's the use!" David I. Walsh's best friend can do him no better turn than, by voting for Mr. McCall, send him back to the private career he pines for.

What better reason for voting for Mr. McCall than that David I. Walsh, after two terms in the Governor's chair, and with a thorough knowledge of the condition of State affairs, decides that there is no urgent reason for the further sacrificing his private career and at the same time Mr. McCall deciding, in the light of 20 years' continuous and able service for his State and country, that his State needs his experience and ability now more than ever?

McCall & Ma-caws

There is a bird called the ma-caw, and he is a devil of a bird—to those who don't know him. He is a native of America. Children think him the whole thing in Birddum. He is a large parrot, with an awful mouth, a long tail and very brilliant colors. His strong point is his voice. Visitors to Dreamwold will recall being startled by hearing a harsh shriek, "Damn you, I'll kill you." He seldom says anything else.

I have had this devil bird for years, and he has killed, but always—female ma-caws.

Once I put a champion fighting cock into his cage. Did he lick the rooster? Did he? It was a week before we could coax him down from a perch just under the ceiling.

The Democrats have made this campaign on "Invisible Government" and McCall a part of it. If there is one thing the people of Massachusetts and the rest of the country know that I know, it is "Invisible Government."

They know that I even invented the name along with "The System" and "Frenzied Finance."

They know that I was out giving battle to "Invisible Government" before David I. Walsh or those stalwart reform crusaders, George Anderson and Louis Brandeis, had heard the name. They know:

That "Invisible Government" for over 30 years has had a price on my head;

That "Invisible Government" has beaten me up and left me for dead a dozen times;

That I have spent millions in battling "Invisible Government," two millions in the Life Insurance battle alone, over half a million in my battles for Roosevelt, a hundred and fifty thousand for that Democrat stalwart of stalwart "Invisible Government" fighters, the late John B. Moran, and over fifty thousand to elect Foss Congressman and Governor.

But what the people do not know is that all through my battling against "Invisible Government" I had no truer adviser than Sam McCall, the staunch Republican who has always, from without and within, given battle to "Invisible Government" wherever—and whenever—it has shown its poisonous head. If there is one reason more than another why Samuel W. McCall should be elected Governor of Massachusetts this year it is "Invisible Government."

Suffrage & Suzerains

They ask me, too, how I am going to vote on suffrage.

For Suffrage at this election and at all elections until women have exact equal constitutional rights with men.

I can understand the femaled-man and the mannied-female Anti Suffragist and the he-freaked and he-bugged, three-eyed, two-nosed and thirteen-toed Anti Suffragist, but one of the things I cannot comprehend is the born-of-woman, red-blooded man with the nerve to maintain that woman is not his equal; that he is his mother's Suzerain.

I am going to vote for Suffrage and to do all in my power to get others to vote for Suffrage.

OPENING INSTALLMENT in WEDNESDAY'S AMERICA

4 DAMAGED IN THOMAS FIRE

President L. D. Nichols of the Chauncey Thomas & Company automobile repairing plant, at Chestnut and Brimmer streets, which was burned Saturday morning, today completed an inventory of the cars saved, damaged and destroyed in the fire.

Among the owners of destroyed cars appear William Whitman of the American Woolen Company, Mrs. Robert Perkins Bass, wife of the former Governor of New Hampshire, C. S. Beebe, A. A. Thordike, J. Randolph Coolidge and other prominent Bostonians. The list given out by Mr. Nichols was as follows:

Cars saved—One car, owner unknown; H. A. Pitman, Boston broker; C. L. Hood of Lowell, L. D. Nichols.

Cars damaged—Mrs. R. I. Hooper, R. D. Fuller, F. R. Porter.

Cars destroyed—F. C. Graham of Hyde Park, Andrew Adie, S. W. Cunard of St. Louis, E. N. Fennell, H. T. Drake of Brockton, W. C. Lewis, Mrs. E. V. R. Crosby of Manchester, W. R. Perkins, Mrs. Robert Perkins Bass of Concord, N. H., Miss Lucy A. Smith, C. B. Beebe, A. A. Thorndike, F. C. Dunaine, John Mayer, A. W. Preston of the United Fruit Company, Mrs. John Hitchcock, Mrs. William Weeden of Providence, Mrs. C. F. Weldon, William Whitman, J. R. Hooper, C. D. Jeanette, J. R. Coolidge, Henry W. Cunner.

Mr. Nichols added: "I am looking about now for a place to establish temporary headquarters, to keep my men employed.

"Next Spring I shall build a fireproof building on a lot I own on Beacon street, in the rear of the Jewish synagogue."

"Besides the cars listed, a number of car bodies were destroyed; but these were being built and were the company's property until delivered, so that the loss comes on the company, and not on those who ordered them."

U.S. TO PROTEST SEIZURE OF THE HOCKING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The seizure of the American steamer Hocking, owned by an American company and bound between two American ports—New York and Norfolk—at the time of her capture by an English warship, caused a sensation in official circles today.

Neither President Wilson nor the State Department had anything to say on the matter.

But the circumstances of the seizure were considered so outrageous that the opinion was freely expressed that the United States must now at last either insist upon her maritime rights against England's high-handed policy or frankly admit her willingness to submit to whatever action England may at any time choose to take.

That the capture of the Hocking is an attack on neutral commerce unwarranted by an interpretation of international law was agreed upon by officials. The practical blockade of the port of New York by English warships was cited by such owners as a grevious offense against American shipping.

The Hocking, the American ship captured by the British, was never a German vessel. She was formerly of Danish registry. Her present owners are, it is declared, Americans, and certainly she is under the protection of American registry. She was not engaged in war trade in any way, and was not even bound between this country and any European port. She was going from New York to Norfolk, in ballast, to take on coal.

It is possible, too, that the Hocking was seized in American waters—within three miles of shore.

That England will disavow the capture of the American ship was considered out of the question; for her capture was in direct line with instructions issued to the English navy. Under a recent decision of the English government, England regards all vessels whose registry has been changed since the war began as enemy ships, and subject to capture.

The Hocking was owned by the American Trans-Atlantic Company, and last week the British Board of Trade posted in London the names of all vessels belonging to this company as subject to capture as prizes.

BOTH IN U. S. COAST TRADE.

The Hocking, together with the Dutch steamer Hamborn, was taken into Halifax, N. S., by a prize crew. American Consul Evan A. Young at Halifax has reported on the seizure of the Dutch vessel, but not on the capture of the Hocking.

His report on the Hocking was expected today to lead to a protest to England. The Hocking and the Hamborn were seized at the same time and near the same spot. Both were in the United States coasting trade, and not engaged in carrying contraband of war, nor in commerce with any European port.

Halifax dispatches today said that the disposition of the cases now rests with the British Admiralty. No explanation of the capture of the two vessels was officially made; but it was admitted that orders had been received direct from London that the Hocking was subject to capture, because of her transfer from Danish to American registry.

The attitude of the British government is expected to be that the company which owned the Hocking was financed by German capital.

The Hocking, formerly the Danish steamer Gronland, was one of a fleet of vessels bought by the American Trans-Atlantic Company.

R. S. Wagner of Milwaukee is President of this company. The corporation owns twelve vessels, of a total of 44,251 gross tons.

BOUGHT SINCE WAR BEGAN.

All of these have been bought since the war began. Most of them have been transferred to American registry.

All are held by the British as subject to capture.

President Wagner today denounced the seizure of the Hocking. He denied that his company had been financed with German capital. Only Americans hold stock in it, he said.

That, with the protest against the capture of the Hocking might go as a protest against the practical blockade of the port of New York was suggested here today.

It was thought possible the Hocking had been boarded within the three-mile limit on leaving New York for Norfolk.

Another American steamer captured by the British has been wrecked, according to the American consul at Dundee, Scotland.

She was the American steamer Llama. A prize crew had been put aboard her by a British warship, and she was bound for port.

She had sailed from Copenhagen for New York; and while in the command of the prize crew, she went aground in the Skerries. Her oil tanks were pierced by the rocks, and she was expected to be a total loss. Twenty-seven members of her crew were landed, the commander and the remainder of the crew standing by the vessel.

GABY DESLYS AND 180 TRUNKS FULL OF HATS ARRIVE

Gaby Deslys, French actress of the diamond-earringed dog, and an auto truck loaded with her wonderful hats.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Gaby Deslys tripped daintily down the gangplank of the American liner New York yesterday, carrying in her arms her pet Chihauhua dog. The dog wore diamond earrings.

Gaby was asked whether the stories printed that she had a mirror fixed with electric lights in each is way that she could get "sunshine" on rainy days was true.

"Oh! yes," she replied; "I have moonbeams, too."

A special automobile express wagon was required to take her famous collection of hats from the pier. The modern king deposer is here to open up Charles Dillingham's annual mid-Winter review, "Stop, Look and Listen."

She brought 180 trunks, bearing her personal wardrobe. These were administered to by three maids, a Japanese valet and a secretary. Harry Pilcer, her dancing partner, was on the same boat.

HALE ANSWERS STATEMENT BY BIRD

Matthew Hale today issued the following statement in answer to Charles Sumner Bird's statement in the morning papers:

Mr. Bird's statement that early last Summer I advised him to seek the Republican nomination "at a time when there was no assurance that the Republican platform would be one that a sincere Progressive could support and stand upon," is extremely misleading. The one thing that I have urged upon Mr. Bird, throughout, is the necessity of a Progressive running in the Progressive primaries and upon the Progressive platform.

I felt last Summer that Mr. Bird, running as a Progressive on our Progressive platform, could have obtained the support of a majority of the voters of both the Republican and Democratic parties. I favored his doing so—in one or both of the old parties—on the express understanding, as I stated in the conference in Mr. Bird's office, that he should do so as a Progressive and standing upon our own platform, and that he should at the same time run in the Progressive primaries.

By doing this I thought—and still think—that Mr. Bird could have united, under one standard, the liberal elements of all the parties in the State and could thereby have succeeded in carrying our principles into effect. But it was clearly understood and stated that I did not favor any course of action which involved either the failure to run in the Progressive primaries or a compromise on our Progressive platform.

AUSTRIANS LOSE 85,000 MEN IN TWO WEEKS

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ROME, Nov. 1.—Austro-Hungarian losses in the great Italian offensive which has been under way for two weeks are estimated at 85,000 in killed, wounded, and captured. The Austrians are reported to have evacuated Riva at the head of the Lake Garda, in Trentino.

The most furious bombardment of the Austro-Italian War is being directed against the Austrian bridgehead positions at Gorizia and Tolmein (Tolmino).

For five days and five nights the Italian guns have thundered incessantly, more than half a million shells being fired. In the valley of the Astico, the Austrians undertook several counter attacks, all of which were repulsed with heavy losses to the attacking forces.

Despite storms on the Isonzo front there has been much aerial activity.

British Steamer Sunk.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The British steamship Toward, 280 tons, has been sunk, presumably by a German submarine. The crew was saved.

CARRANZA ARMY NOW MOVING TO VILLA'S REAR

By JOHN EDWIN KEVIN,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Gen. Carranza, head of Mexico's de facto government, has started an enveloping movement by which he hopes to surround General Villa and his forces at Agua Prieta.

The State Department received advices this afternoon that 7,000 infantry troops, 3,000 cavalry, and 24 cannon, commanded by General Dieguez, are being rushed northward fro Guaymaso. Carranza continues to hurry to Agua Prieta from the north by passing through the United States. It is believed certain here that he intends to attack Villa from the rear while the latter is attacking Agua Prieta from the south.

General Funston, commander of the U. S. forces said to number 8,00 on the Mexican border notified Colonel Herbert Slocum today that he would arrive at Douglas, Ariz. tomorrow morning.

The rear guard of the Villa army reached the border near Douglas today with the last of 40 heavy guns and between 50 and 100 machine guns. Although there has been desultory firing, General Villa had not begun his main attack this morning.

LITTLE COURT-MARTIAL IN SESSION AT NAVY YARD

The court-martial opened at 10:20 today, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske presiding. All the officers present were in full uniform. Seven rear admirals constitute the trial board. The trial was held in the "East Room" of building 107 at the Navy Yard.

Rear Admiral Little was the last to enter the room. His interests are represented by Commander J. L. Latimer. Admiral Little shook hands with his friends in the courtroom, then sat down by Latimer. It was remarked that the Admiral wore a monocle dangling by a ribbon from his lapel.

He was the smallest man in the room, short and slight, though exceedingly erect.

FIRST WITNESS.

Judge Advocate A. W. Johnson opened the proceedings by reading the charges, Admiral Little pleading not guilty to each. The first witness was Lieutenant Moses, commander of the K-3. He testified:

Q.—When did you take command of the K-2? A.—January 31, 1914.

Q.—When did you first learn the batteries were troublesome? A.—During the preliminary trials, in December, 1913. I noted certain cells showed low voltage, and after lifting them, I found lead drops in them.

In reply to a question he explained the danger of lead drops, and said they would lead to short circuiting.

Q.—How many cells were examined by you? A.—Seventeen. One or two others were taken out for other reasons by the contractor.

Q.—Do you recall how many times you reported this condition to Admiral Little? A.—My report was made through another officer. There was no direct report to Admiral Little, although we talked over the situation at various times.

Q.—Was there any objection to the examination of those cells? A.—Yes, the contractor objected strenuously to the examination of the cells of the batteries.

He described the lead-burning, which is caused, he said, by lead drops in the cells.

Q.—Is it evidence of poor workmanship to find these lead drops in the cells? A.—They should not have been in the batteries.

Lieutenant Moses said he had had three and a half years of submarine work.

"LEAD-DROP" A DEFECT.

A sample of lead-drop similar to those declared to have been found in the batteries of the K-3 was introduced. The lead-drop is said to be caused by defective workmanship. That introduced was a globule of lead the size of a marble.

Q.—Is the lead-drop a working part of the battery? A.—No, on the contrary it is caused by defective workmanship.

Q.—How does lead-drop injure batteries A.—It impedes the dropping of sediment, which later produces a short circuit.

Lieutenant Moses was then cross-examined by Commander J. L. Latimer. He declared Admiral Little never encouraged him to give his opinion as to the condition of the K-2.

Q.—Why, then, didn't you go to Little? A.—I felt that I was a junior and that my opinion didn't carry much weight. (Lieutenant Moses apparently is about thirty-two.)

Lieutenant Moses declared he had reason to believe Admiral Little had seen notes of accidents in the logbook of the K-2.

Q.—Why so? A.—Because I saw them on his desk.

Q.—What other boat, according to your knowledge, had the same kind of batteries as the K-2? A.—I have reason to believe the G-4 had almost identical batteries.

Here the Judge Advocate wanted to know the purpose of the questions, and Commander Latimer said:

"I am trying to show that the battery of the K-2 was the first of its kind ever used and that its action was very incomplete."

Q.—What was the condition of this battery on Jan. 1, 1914? A.—Two cells showed low voltage, probably caused by lead-drop.

Asked if it was not guess-work as to whether or not there were other defects in the battery besides lead-drop, Lieutenant Moses replied:

"Yes, it was partly guess-work, but was based on previous examinations and later results in the battery."

The order for a court-martial was announced October 14 and caused great surprise. The date of the trial was at first scheduled for October 18, with the following court: Rear Admirals Bradley A. Fiske, James M. Helm, Wythe M. Parker, Walter F. Worthington, Albert Cleaves and Herbert O. Dunn, and Paymaster-General Thomas Cowie, with Lieutenant-Commander Alfred W. Johnson acting as judge advocate. Later the date of the trial was changed to today.

Admiral Little was retired in 1914 under the age provision. His last active duty was government inspector at Quincy, when he passed upon the work of the Fore River company which was building submarines for the government.

After being accepted by the government submarines of the K-type developed serious battery troubles. The admiral was inspector in charge of the K-2.

The Navy Department said that its investigations brought from Admiral Little a statement that he had an understanding with the company that if any defects were discovered in the batteries they would be corrected at the company's expense. The Navy Department said officials of the company denied this.

Admiral Little is sixty-three years old and has had a long and honorable career in the United States Navy. He resides at No. 847 Riverside Drive, New York.

FATALLY WOUND MAN WHO SHOT POLICEMAN

By International News Service.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Nov. 1.—"Honey" Budlong, whose right name is said to be Lindel Borsworth, who is wanted for the murder of Detective Bennett W. Dorman of New Haven, was surrounded and shot, probably fatally, by police and detectives at an old trolley car barn near Avon Park today.

When apprehended on information of two boys, who had been talking with him in the barn, Budlong drew his revolver and ran. A volley of shots were fired at him by the officers and three took effect. He was removed to the St. Vincent hospital.

Settlement for Arabic Deaths to Be Taken Up

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—German Ambassador Von Bernstorff will come to Washington tomorrow to confer with Secretary of State Lansing regarding settlement of the claims for the death of the two Americans on the Arabic, which was sunk by a German submarine.

It is possible that negotiations will be taken up regarding a settlement of claims for American lives lost on the Lusitania.

Tomorrow's conference, it was learned, will be the first of another series of informal meetings which is expected to result in entirely clearing up all the remaining differences between this government and Germany.

What we need is the rich cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion to renew the blood and carry strength to every organ of the body, while its glycerine soothes the respiratory tract, and its hypophosphites strengthen the excitable nerves.

Scott's Emulsion is a scientific oil-food, of unusual benefit to those past fifty years—particularly during the colder seasons, it imparts warmth and creates strength. One bottle will prove its worth. No alcohol or harmful drugs.

He has broadened and extended the powers of the State in the supervision and regulation of all gas and electric companies.
In the last hours of the legislature the railroads tried to slip through a bill which was intended to make Massachusetts endorse the so-called "unearned increment" theory on which the railroads want to base an increase of freight rates and carfares. This theory, if accepted, would take more than seven hundred million dollars a year out of the pockets of the American people.
But Governor Walsh stopped the scheme by a veto and compelled the Republican organization to cut it out of the railroad bill.

SALE TOMORROW TO HELP WORK OF NURSES

The Educational Loan Fund committee of the Boston City Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Association will hold a sale tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. at the Vose House of the Boston City Hospital, under the direction of Miss Mary A. McMahon, chairman.

The Educational Loan Fund, although it has already assumed considerable proportions, has not reached a sum which is sufficient to carry on the work desired. It is the desire of the committee to enable its ambitious and well qualified nurses to pursue their studies further. To create an incentive for excellence in nursing work and scholarly attainment a scholarship for the most deserving members of each class will be founded.

The use of the Vose House for the sale was granted by the board of trustees.

The fair was decided upon at a meeting held last June. Plans have been worked upon ever since. The committees in charge is Misses Ursula C. Nott, Ellen C. Dall, Mary A. McMahon.

This committee then appointed these sub-committees:

Fancy Articles—Misses Downing, Clarke, Christie, Quinn and Vosbeck.

Grab Bags and Woman with 100 Pockets—Misses Goodrich, Hyde, Mrs. Dorr and Mrs. Rollins.

Much credit is due to the officers of the Nurses Alumnae Association who are endeavoring to make this a great financial success.

Miss Emma M. Nichols, R. N., treasurer of the association, is also superintendent of the Nurses' Training School, Boston City Hospital, councilor of Massachusetts State Nurses' Association, Central Committee American Red Cross Nursing Association, chairman of State Committee of American Red Cross Nursing Service, president of Massachusetts League of Nursing Education, treasurer of Suffolk County Central Directory for Nurses.

Miss Mary M. Riddle, R. N., president, is also treasurer of the Board of Directors. Journal of Nursing.

700 Newsboys to See Performance of "Experience"

Wuxtree! Wuxtree!

You may have some difficulty in obtaining an evening newspaper on Wednesday night. But don't feel grouchy over it.

The Boston "newsies" are taking the night off.

And they have a good reason for so doing. Seven hundred of them are now in the possession of tickets for the Wednesday night performance of "Experience" at the Boston Opera House. The tickets were given to them by Morris Gest, the producer of the play, who insisted that the "newsies" should be his guests during the engagement of "Experience" in this city.

To say they are taking advantage of Mr. Gest's invitation would be putting it mildly.

But the "newsies" are not letting the kindness of Mr. Gest pass unappreciated. Listen to what they have done.

Each newsboy "pitched in" a penny. That made 700 pennies. The coins were turned over to a Boston jewelry concern to be melted.

And right here, you will agree the newsboys have sense as well as cents. The 700 have been melted and are being made into a newsboy. "Joe" Schneider, who sells a couple of bundles of AMERICANS every day, at Congress and Milk streets, was the "newsie" picked to pose for the statue. "Joe" was a model for two hours each day, in the studio of Miss Nellie Louise Thompson, Trinity place, the sculptress who is making the statue.

But here is the big thing about Wednesday night for the "newsies." Armed with their statue, they will march, 700 strong, to the Boston Opera House where "Joe" will present Mr. Gest with the statue, just previous to the rise of the curtain.

Mr. Gest will take the present to his Princess Theatre, New York, where he will always keep it as a reminder of the Boston "newsies," one of whom he, himself, used to be, not so many years ago.

New Bedford Stowaway Saved by Alarm Clock

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Thomas F. Robinson of New Bedford, Mass., who arrived in town today on the United Fruit liner Trivives as a stowaway, owes his life to an alarm clock which he took with him when he stowed himself away in the tunnel shaft of the Trivives just before she left Belize, Honduras. Robinson, who is something of a fortune hunter, took this way of returning from Central American because of lack of funds.

On October 17, just before the Trivives put out from Belize, Robinson stole aboard and hid himself in the shaft tunnel of the ship. Two days later at sea one of the crew of the engine room while inspecting heard the clatter of an alarm clock, and upon opening the shaft found Robinson unconscious. Robinson had taken with him when he came aboard an alarm clock and a bunch of bananas. When found he had one banana left.

Baby Drowns as Mother and Aunt Attempt Rescue

Twenty-months-old Robert J. Gallagher, Jr., of Oakland street, East Dedham, was drowned today in Mill Pond, seventy-five yards from his home, while his mother and aunt, Mrs. James Dunn, made frantic attempts to save him.

The little boy, with his two-year-old cousin, John Dunn, was throwing stones into the pond. He fell in. The screams of the little Dunn boy brought his own mother and Mrs. Gallagher to the scene. Mrs. Gallagher picked up little John and asked him what was the trouble.

"Bobbie's gone," sobbed John, pointing toward the water.

It was only then the women realized what was happening. They looked and saw a little cap floating on the water. In an an instant both women had plunged into the water and were wading out. Neckdeep they came on the body, and with it between them they struggled ashore.

Mrs. Gallagher carried her little boy home and applied first-aid treatment. Meanwhile, the police and doctors had been summoned. Dr. Prescott F. Drew and Dr. Henry M. Brady, with Patrolmen Maurice J. Brown and Fred J. Hogan, responded, bringing with them a lungmotor. They worked on the body for an hour in hope that a spark of life remained.

THE TRUTH ABOUT WOMAN SUFFRAGE

There were 1,074,000 women of voting age in Massachusetts at the last census.

The Anti-Suffrage Association, after 20 years of the most expensive and thorough canvass ever taken in the history of our State, has been able to put on its list

ONLY 36,000 WOMEN OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE

This leaves, according to their own figures,

OVER 1,000,000 WOMEN WHO ARE NOT OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE

Should the wishes of 36,000 women, who are anxious to shirk their duty as citizens, be used to offset the wishes of Over 1,000,000 patriotic women who are ready and willing to help the honest men of our State to make the State better and protect the home?

$1000.00 Reward!

"MISSING!—George Warham offers a reward of $1000.00 for information as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Susan Ferguson, nee Susan Lenox, his young niece."

Susan Lenox was forced by her uncle to marry a brutal farm hand. After the first night with him she fled, finding safety with a troupe of river actors. Now the words of that fateful newspaper paragraph seemed to threaten her security and imperil her future.

These new companions were social outcasts—and pathetically poor. A thousand dollars meant a fortune to them. With money so scarce and so useful, little would they scruple how they got it. It would be natural for them to recognize in her the missing niece of George Warham.

Would they deliver her back to the life which now was but a hideous memory? Better death than further degradation at the hands of her drunken husband.

"The Story of Susan Lenox" will stir your very soul. Susan's trials have only just begun. You will read with breathless interest her hard struggle against hunger, cold, anxiety, and the last, worse danger that threatens every helpless woman. The whole country is talking about this startling novel. Begin it today in the war on the side of England, France and Russia, says a Central News despatch from Bucharest.

Susan, beautiful and intelligent, is admired, but shunned by the whole village. She loves Sam Wright, a rich college boy. The village gossip about their attachment prompts Susan to run away to Cincinnati. Her uncle finds her, insists she has gone the way of her mother, and that Sam must marry her. To save the Warham name the stern uncle compels the innocent Susan to marry a low-bred farmer. Start The Story of Susan Lenox today. BULGARS MAKE NEW GAINS IN SERBIA

Russian transports, convoyed by warships, arrived off Varna, Bulgaria, on Sunday, says another Central News despatch. It added that the Russians had renewed the bombardment of Varna while the transports lay by under the protection of torpedo boat destroyers.

Further gains for the Bulgarians in northeast Serbia and in the valley of the Morava River were reported by the Bulgar General Staff in an official statement issued today. Great stores of war materials were secured by the Bulgarian army. The text of the official statement follows:

"Southwest of Knijajevats we have occupied the crest of Tresiboda Mountain. In the valley of the Morava River the Bulgarians have occupied the region of Katchenik. The attempted advance of the Serbs was checked by our troops.

"We captured two mountain guns and a great quantity of ammunition. Twelve thousand rifles, 350 boxes of powder, 15,000 boxes of cartridges and other war material were found in Uskub by our troops who occupied that Serbian city."

An official report on operations in the Balkans issued by the French War Office today reports skirmishes between the French and Bulgarians in southeastern Serbia. It also states that the Bulgars are making use of heavy artillery.

The Paris official report follows:

"Army of the Orient—The Bulgarian forces which occupy Istip sent a reconnoitring company toward Krivolak on October 27. This company fell back before our advanced posts without fighting.

"There have been unimportant skirmishes and an intermittant cannonade between Rabrova and the Bulgarian frontier, where the enemy used one piece of large calibre, but without any result.

TERMS OF PEACE TO FIX POPE'S STATUS

By GUSTAVE SCHWEPPENDICK
Special Correspondent of the Boston American.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—According to an exclusive statement given to me by the foreign office the status of the Pope will be fixed by the peace negotiations after the war is ended. A high state officer told me officially that the world status of the Pontiff and his immunity from interference by the warlike powers will be one of the most important matters to be settled when peace is concluded.

Count Hertling, the Bavarian prime minister, has issued a statement saying:

"German and Austrian diplomats have had the greatest difficulty in communicating with the Pope on account of the war. These conditions must be altered. The assurances given by Italy, when Rome was taken by the Italians, were repudiated the first time they were put to the test."

Italy granted certain privileges to Rome. Among others was a guarantee that his communication with the dignitaries of the church should be absolutely free.

German papers now charge that the German bishops are unable to communicate with the Vatican. Letters to and from the Pope fail to reach their destination. German and Austrian diplomats were forced to leave the Vatican because their lives were threatened by an unruly Roman mob.

This in spite of the fact that Italy had promised safety to all diplomatic agents accredited to the Vatican.

Cardinal Appeals in Aid of Belgian Nuns

Cardinal O'Connell has received an appeal from France for assistance in securing funds for the purchase of material with which to make gowns and dresses for the nuns, hundreds of whom have been forced to leave Belgium since the beginning of the war. The appeal is signed by Mrs. Caroline R. Hill of the French-American Committee for the Protection of Children on the Frontier. The Cardinal replying, states he will appeal to the people of the archdiocese for funds.

A PHYSICIAN'S FIRST STEP

When you are ill a physician's first step is to give a laxative, no matter what the trouble may be, because no medicine will take proper effect while waste is in the Lower Intestine.

If there were no waste there, you probably would not have been ill at all, because physicians agree that 95 per cent. of all human ills is due to the accumulation of waste matter in the Lower Intestine.

Enlightened physicians are now recommending Internal Baths by means of the "K. I. C. Cascade," and over 200,000 are already using it to keep their intestine free from waste always and with correspondingly better health, strength and efficiency.

Ask about it at the Biker-Jaynes Drug Stores in New England, who will give you an enlightening booklet, "Why Man of Today Is Only 58 Per Cent. Efficient." It will be most interesting to you.—Advertisement.

HOLD 6TH MAN ON BOMB PLOT CHARGE

By the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Engelbert Bronkhorst, a German, was today held in $25,000 bail by United States Commissioner Houghton on the charge of conspiring with Robert Fay, Walter Schols and other Germans to blow up ships at sea carrying ammunition to the Allies.

Bronkhorst was arrested in New Jersey thirty-six hours ago by agents of the Department of Justice, but his arrest was kept secret. Bronkhorst waived extradition and voluntarily came to New York for arraignment. He could not furnish bail and was locked up.

Bronkhorst was the sixth man arrested in the German bomb plot. The specific charge against him is that he furnished Fay with dynamite for making bombs.

The prisoner is fifty years old and has been a mining engineer and prospector in all parts of the world.

Bronkhorst was employed at Dr. Lust's sanitorium near Somerville, N. J., blasting roads, when Dr. Herbert Kienzle, another alleged conspirator in the bomb plot, was there.

Kienzle and the prisoner became acquainted and Bronkhorst is alleged to have been taken into the conspiracy. According to Chief William Flynn of the secret service, Bronkhorst furnished Fay with dynamite through Kienzle.

Bronkhorst waived examination and refused offer of counsel.

"I have an insuperable aversion to lawyers," declared the prisoner. "In my youth I studied law myself, and since then have had no use for lawyers."

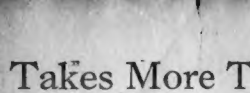
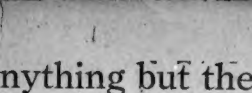
It Takes More Than a Punch to Win—Many a Hard Hitter Never Hits Anything but the Mat



BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS



SAYLOR CLAIMS HE WILL SLIP LEWIS A SURPRISE

Ted (Kid) Lewis, the justly renowned welterweight, who bids fair becoming the monarch of the 135-pound division just as soon as Freddie Welsh, his countryman, condescends to meet him, makes what may prove to be his final Boston appearance as a lightweight in the ring at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night.

The party of the second part is to be Milburn (Young) Saylor, the redoubtable Indianapolis bifter who, while generally rated as a mile inferior to Jimmy Dundee, Charley White, Joe Mandot and those sort, probably has it on those youths. If Lewis whips Saylor it's hard to figure another lightweight foe for him for a Boston performance.

Deged on what Saylor accomplished in Boston in his last several starts he stands in first place among the rough and ready U. S. 135-ponders. At the Atlas A. he gave Charley White a good drubbing. When the twelfth frame was over B. Roche of New York, the gent reported to do the refereeing and a gent who has never been brought to town since, was the only person in the well stuffed building who wasn't cock sure Saylor had won. Either that, or Roche thought a draw verdict plenty big enough to be slipped Saylor. So that was his verdict—a dead heat.

Despite the fact that he's due to be making up the flatiz ladder, is easy to do business with, and, as Boston is one of the few boxing centres in the land where decisions are rendered, Ted shows excellent judgment in signing bi-monthly articles with Ivy Lewis and Mish Murray.

GETTING MONEY AND GLORY.

He's getting his at the rate of over $1,000 a performance, and, as he wins every time he starts, his stock gets a big boost by the stories going out that Mandot, Baldwin, Britton, Gallant and the rest of them are being made to look cheap by the lanky member from London.

Welsh must recognize Lewis before long; in fact, it looks very much as if New Orleans, where the route is twenty rounds and where decisions are permitted, would be the battleground of a battle for the lightweight title either on Thanksgiving Day or on one of the later holidays—Christmas or New Year's.

Mandot, whom Lewis made look like a false alarm in this week's big event at the A. A., is a native of the Crescent and the sports of that town like the T. Walsh entrant just Note the tie Boston used to be behind of one even in the days when that little number was good enough for flatiz topliners.

New Orleans thought Mandot invincible, especially over the sprint route. He held his own with Freddie Welsh in a twenty-round bout in the Crescent City and bested a long string of good boys, the speedy Dundee, who had the better of his ten-round combat with Willie Ritchie in New York last week, included in the bevy.

There was no mistaking the decisiveness of the beating Lewis slipped Mandot. Nor did Joe or his manager, Tommy Walsh, squawk when Referee Joe Powers decided against them, or when the press stuff went out giving Ted full credit for his decisive conquest.

NEW ORLEANS AFTER BOUT.

As a result of Lewis' win over Mandot New Orleans is now clamoring for a Welsh-Lewis battle. Freddie has started to prepare himself for the approaching Winter season. His talk, likewise the chatter of his manager, Harry Pollok, indicates that the champion really means business this Winter, as long as the big cash bids are received and as long as he wins.

Welsh states that if New Orleans comes through with the right offer he will meet whatever lightweight Messrs. Tortorich and Burns nominate. Right here it can be said that their pick will be Ted Lewis, providing the Britisher continues to win.

Saylor has arrived in Boston in company with his manager, Ray Bronson, who was some pumpkins himself as a ring artist a few years back. Bronson fought with the welterweights and ranked in the front flights, in fact, during a period embracing a year and eighteen months ruled just about the king of his class.

Bronson handled Saylor in his several previous starts at the Atlas A. A. this year. He states that his charge is in trim for tomorrow night's scrap; that he allots Saylor an even chance to be the victor, and that if from the show in over his starter, and not Lewis, will be the lightweight king of the welterweight country over will flood with offers for a championship set-to with Welsh.

Maybe so and maybe not. There can be no mistaking Saylor's willingness and aggressiveness. He's as busy a workman as the 135-pound division owns.

SAYLOR IN TIP-TOP TRIM.

Saylor got in two weeks of hard work in Indianapolis for this encounter and declares that should he bump into the unexpected and go down to defeat he will have absolutely no excuses to offer. He's a good trainer and clean liver and looms up as exactly the foe who may give Lewis, who has proven his class, trouble.

Boston boxing lovers have installed Lewis a 10 to 7 favorite over Saylor. Despite the fact that the latter is a pretty well thought of locally, the odds still fair to lengthen to 2 to 1 before it comes time for the principals to start the two classy lightweights on their twelve-round grind.

Boston's best judges consider Lewis invincible among the lightweights, likewise among the welterweights, as he clearly bested Jack Britton the last time they squared off and would install him the betting favorite were the ring six pounds and inches in the land brought here to oppose him.

Even if Lewis gets his chance with Welsh during the Winter, Boston sports will play Ted, and they expect he's got any if even money is the best price they can get.

Saylor Coming Again If He Makes Good

It is pretty well understood that if Young Saylor makes good in his bout with Ted (Kid) Lewis at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night, he will be brought back for a contest with Charley White, the Chicago 135-pounder, on November 16. Following "Billy" Roche's bad decision when Saylor and White met here some two months ago, this is a match that Boston "sports" are anxious to see.

Chick to Box Wood in Gloucester Windup

Joe Chick, the Gloucester welterweight, and Ray Wood of Fall River clash in the windup event before the Lenox A. C. of Gloucester tonight. The route is twelve rounds. Teddy Murphy, the West End featherweight, goes on with Sammy Stern, who trimmed him recently at the Atlas A. A. in the semi-windup. Phil Powers is carded to make his bow as the Lenox A. C.'s official referee.

Umpire Steve Kane Dead.

Steve Kane, a former National League player and later paired with "Bill" Klem on the latter organization's staff of umpires, died Saturday in Louisville. He was in the Federal League for a short time in 1914, and his last engagement was with the Ohio State League the past season.

GEORGE WARD TO LEAD BROOKLYN FEDERALS

BROOKLYN, Nov. 1.—George S. Ward is to be elected president of the Brooklyn (Federal League) club to succeed the late Robert B. Ward. The two brothers were equal owners in the stock of the club.

Whene R. B. Ward met the Federal League owners in February, 1914, George S. Ward was in Boston and received a telephone call from his brother George S. returned to New York to approve the project to establish a Federal League club in Brooklyn.

Glancing at the faces of James A. Gilmore, Ned Hanlon, Joe Tinker, and others, whom he had known as a "fan," George S. Ward remarked before a word had been spoken: "Well, I see we are going into Federal League baseball."

Details of the Brooklyn-Federal League baseball plans will be made public after the annual meeting of the league in Indianapolis, November 9.

George S. Ward began "coaching" for baseball teams in Pittsburgh and vicinity. He was born in Allegheny City, Pa., January 1, 1867, and while a public school pupil delivered bread for Joseph Horne, Hugh Ward, before school hours. In the late afternoons he also worked in the bakery, but was frequently able to join the "fans" at the, Pittsburgh ground, Recreation Park, Allesheny, and comment on the work of Jimmy Galvin or Jim McCormick, pitching heroes of the period, and many other famous stars, including "Deacon" White, "Chi" Carroll, Ned Hanlon, now a Federal League club director in Baltimore, and "Billy" Sunday, the Evangelist.

New York Out With Big Bid for Willard

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The Garden A. C. has made an offer of $45,000 to Jess Willard for three fights. It hopes to match the heavyweight champion against Frank Moran, "Gunboat" Smith and the winner of the Jack Dillon-Charlie Weinert bout in the order named. Willard has not yet answered this feeler.

The champion declined a few days ago that he would be willing to defend his title in February and he will-ing to accept the best terms offered. It is doubtful if the champion can better a guarantee of $45,000 for thirty rounds.

Bennett Jared May Recover.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 1.—Bennett Jared, the University of Tennessee player, though paralyzed from his neck down as a result of injuries in Saturday's game with Vanderbilt, has never lost consciousness, and, according to the attending surgeons, has a slight chance for recovery. He successfully withstood an operation performed to remove a clot upon the seventh cervical vertebra of his spinal column.

Toronto Retains "Bill" Clymer.

TORONTO, Nov. 1.—Manager "Bill" Clymer will have charge of the Toronto (International League) club again next season. Louisville wanted him, but the Toronto club has accepted his terms.

Rheumatism Easily Relieved By Cleansing the Blood

S. S. S. Gives Quick Relief by Toning Up the Blood

Yes, but how? A natural question. The answer is that you must cleanse your blood by stimulating it to healthy, vigorous action, so that it will throw off the germs and impurities that cause Rheumatism. The action of the wonderful blood purifier, S. S. S., is to practically renew the life blood, give it vigor, stimulate the flow, making it throw out the germs and the poison impurities. The excruciating pains of Rheumatism, whether it is the shooting, stabbing Sciatica, the gripping agony of muscular Rheumatism, or aching arms and legs that break up sleep will be entirely relieved by S. CONDITIONS ON GRIDIRON GROW PUZZLING

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Another week nearer the big football games of the year finds the conditions clouded a bit as ever. The results of the different games Saturday were in no way great surprises; in fact, the dope was that Colgate would be a cinch for Yale, that Harvard would beat Penn State and that Princeton would have no trouble winning from Williams.

There are, however, many days before the real big tests of the season, and the part of the dope has caused much more than a further demonstration of the fact that the new game has taken it easier for the smaller colleges to pile up their scoring total. Whether this is due to the more general knowledge of the game, a fleeter group of players, or whether the two big teams are lacking in the essentials is hard to say.

In the days not so long ago, either, when the brain was to a large extent subordinate to brawn and muscle, the big fellows made the big teams at the great universities and marched down the field with crushing effect. The day of brawn is past in college football, though there is more close resemblance of the old-time line rushing, breaking through to get the game.

There are many things, let us hope, that will be uncovered in the management ending toward the games of the year. It speaks well for the physical condition of the team that Harvard that they could stand the gaff as well as they did, for Penn State was out to win if possible.

PRINCETON COMES NEXT.

Repeated penalties helped to make the victory of a crimson color, but it can be safely said the Harvard team knew it had been playing football. This leads to the thought that next Saturday Mohan and his men seek the Tiger in his own lair.

There is likely to be a game to attract the attention of the entire football world. Not that anything of extreme brilliance or craft has been in the offing, but the fact that the two teams, Harvard will hardly stop the Princeton machine on account of the marked improvement.

The way the men of Old Nassau have plowed their way to victory, the manner in which they follow the ball, their alertness and firmness of grip on the ball and grasp upon the situation should carry them through to the finish triumphantly.

The position Yale finds itself in brings small comfort to Frank Hinkey. There appears to be lamentable lack of organization to the game, if the reports of the game in which Colgate played all around the Blue.

Brown, which team meets the Bulldog next Saturday, had a warm-up contest against the Vermont boys and grew tired in their scoring. Yale will probably find more trouble with the Brown team than in any game played so far this Fall.

ELIS HAVE LOST HEART.

In almost every department of the game Yale was tried and found wanting. Penalties also figured in the contest, and the Yale kicking department fell down sadly. Coach Hinkey will not only have to bolster his team and do it rapidly, but it looks like the boys of New Haven had lost heart.

This is a fatal condition in any athletic organization, until the Blue comes back rapidly and all a Yale player has to see is the Crimson to make him fight to the last ditch, so with the return of the Yale spirit there may yet be hope for Hinkey's men. However, spirit, while essential in all endeavor, whether on or off the gridiron, cannot overcome weakness in the fundamentals, and from appearances the Yale team needs plenty of forcing.

While there is some talk of the withdrawal of objection to the disqualified Yale players, they would not appear to be much of a chance for these men. Yale is not building up the material of these close to athletics at New Haven, to change its attitude in this connection, and the withdrawal of a team that can stop Cornell and Harvard must be made with the material now in the hands of the coaches.

DARTMOUTH-PENN GAME.

Dartmouth had a hard time easy, so there is a little more joy than gloom at Hanover.

The result of the University of Pennsylvania game makes it look like the game to be played at Fenway Park Saturday will be worth while. Dartmouth has a big following in and about Boston.

Penn State's defeat of the new athletic field at University Heights was marked by the defeat of the Boston College team. There was, however, plenty of room for the 'Varsity football boys, and those who attended saw a good, scrappy struggle.

"Dope" from the different college camps will be carefully scanned this week. The time is growing too short for comfort at both Yale and Harvard. Princeton is confident it can come through, so there you are. For a guess, me for the Tiger.

Colgate's Line Still Clean.

There is credit galore coming to Colgate for keeping its goal line clean up through the Yale game. In its five games Colgate has scored 223 points.

Comiskey Offers $50,000 for J. Franklin Baker

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—"Connie" Mack and Frank Baker have been brought to a reconciliation by Ira Thomas, chief of the advisory board of the Athletics. The home run swatter of Trappe, Md., has assured the leader of the White Elephants that he is prepared to fulfil the obligations of his contract, which is binding throughout the season of 1916.

Baker has lost caste in Philadelphia, and it is not believed that he will be retained by Mack. His co-operation, however should make it easier for Mack to dispose of the services of the once great terror.

Few would be surprised if Baker were to come to the New York Americans, though Comiskey is willing to pay $50,000 for the third baseman, it is said.

That sum is practically twice as much as any one else would bid. American League sentiment disapproves of further strengthening the White Sox, as it favors a general uplift to its cause in this city.

BREEZY BOXING BITS

If Ted (Kid) Lewis disposes of Young Saylor in their battle at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night, he will have succeeded in batting 1,000 against the different U. S. lightweights sent against him since he arrived from the other side. White and Mandot are the best boys Ted has mussed up.

THAT should mean, first, a Lewis-Ritchie match, and then a titular battle with Freddie Welsh for the title, providing the shrewd H. Pollok, the champion's lookout, will sign for the encounter.

THE Atlas A. A. management an-nounces that the advance sale for tomorrow night's show indicates another "house" equally as bulky as the big one that turned out for the Lewis-Mandot setto.

COMES to but George Freeman with the crack that Mike Glover is prepared to take on Lewis at the Atlas A. A. Freeman avers that Mike showed himself to be a tip-top sport when he stood for "Soldier" Bartfield's cancellation and allowed Ivy Lewis to bring Ted Lewis over from New York to fill in.

CLOVER has a lot of well wishers among Boston's army of boxing lovers, but the big bulk of them figure that Mike has had his chance to come through. The South Boston boy should show elsewhere for a time if he is to get his cut of any more big "houses." A few wins in other cities will bring Mike back into popular favor with the masses.

HARRY CARLSON, who looms up as a mighty pert prospect, has been matched to meet Phinney Boyle before the Lenox A. C. of Lawrence, November 11. The two kids recently put up a lively draw.

HUBERT FLYNN has been ap-pointed boxing instructor of the Colonial Sporting Club, just formed in Providence, with a membership of 200. Semi-monthly shows are to be pulled off at headquarters on Holden street.

IT'S quite a stiff show Promoter Eddie Mack has mushed for the Lenox A. C. members at Gloucester tonight. Joe Chick and Ray Wood, who meet in the star number, generally put up a rugged scrap. Phil Powers will handle all the numbers.

THE Ted Lewis-Young Erne bout, carded for Philadelphia last Saturday night, was put over until next Saturday night.

B. C. High Hard at It.

Boston College High starts the stiffest week's practice of the season today in preparation for its big game with St. John's Prep Friday afternoon. The rival teams are the strongest the schools have had in the years. St. John's Prep is especially anxious to wipe out the defeat suffered last year and will be accompanied to Boston by a big delegation of "rooters."

SHEVLIN ON WAY EAST TO COACH THE ELIS

SHEVLIN WON'T TALK, BUT IS EN ROUTE EAST

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—Tom Shevlin, Yale's former football captain, left for New Haven last night. He refused to discuss the report from New Haven that he was going East to succeed Frank Hinkey as the Elis' head coach.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1.—Exit Frank Hinkey, "the silent man," as head coach of the Yale varsity eleven.

Enter Tom Shevlin, a Bulldog hero of a few years back, an All-American end, who is Eastward bound, from his home in Minneapolis and due to reach New Haven today.

Poor Yale; luckless Yale! Beaten, and defeated decisively, by Washington and Jefferson and Colgate, two teams that scarcely can be rated among the East's big gridiron machines, on two successive Saturdays has disgusted all good graduates, the student body and the football crowd itself.

Captain Aleck Wilson took the bull by the horns when he wired Shevlin on Saturday to come to Yale at once. While it is taken for granted on all sides in New Haven that Wilson's action means that Hinkey is to be dethroned as the Blue's football tutor, and that Shevlin, as soon as he arrives, will be placed in charge, nobody in control will put the official stamp on the report.

SHEVLIN TO BE BOSS.

Hinkey's three-year contract does not expire until the close of the 1916 season. Today it was generally thought that he would stay in New Haven and remain the head coach, so far as all outward appearances go, but that Shevlin will be the real power behind the throne.

In 1910, when the Yale team was on the rocks, Hinkey got a securely go now, Shevlin left his business in Minneapolis and came to the rescue on Yale.

The team—it was Fred Daly's eleven—did so well under Shevlin's vigorous handling and spirited methods that it braced tremendously. It beat Princeton and tied Harvard.

The general belief is that something radical and drastic is needed and needed quickly if the Yale football situation is to be saved from utter ruin.

Shevlin is a live wire, a loyal son of Elihu and also friendly with Hinkey. Under him Yale is expected to perk up, though to expect him to turn out a winner now is expecting a good deal.

SANFORD ALSO COMING.

Report also had it that George Foster Sanford will come to Yale's help for the rest of the season. Sanford is valuable as a line coach and a general adviser on "dope," and from time to time in the past has done much to revive drooping spirits at Yale.

He is to give such time to his alma mater as he can spare from his coaching duties at Rutgers. Both Shevlin and Sanford are men who can impart energy as well as knowledge to their pupils.

Dundee-Rivers Bout On.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Lightweight Johnny Dundee leaves for Chicago today, where he will put the finishing touches on his training for his ten-round bout with Joe Rivers in Milwaukee next Tuesday night.

EXPECT TRINITY TO TAKE OUT BRICKLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—With only one day remaining before the battle the final outcome of the Brickley controversy between New York University and Trinity is still in the balance. It is probable, however, that Brickley will be withdrawn and that the annual contest will be played as usual.

Following a statement issued by Gustavus Kirby, president of the I. C. A. A. A., to the effect that if Cann and Trinity should play against Brickley they would automatically become professional and would be ineligible to compete in any meets held under the rules of the organization, Mr. Cann, the director of athletics, went to Hartford Saturday to explain the position of New York University to Professor J. J. McCook, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics.

Together they drew up the following statement, which was to be submitted to the members of the alumni advisory committee during the day.

"To the Advisory Alumni Committee, Trinity College:

"A game of football having been arranged between the teams representing New York University and Trinity College we ask that you recede from your position with respect to Mr. Brickley's playing in the Trinity lineup.

"We do this without raising the question of the status of Mr. Brickley or any other member of your team, but solely to prevent the necessity on our part of choosing between the following courses: (1) Of jeopardizing the amateur standing of two of our men who are under the rules of an association in which we belong and to which you do not belong; (2) of withdrawing these men from our lineup; (3) of preventing any break together and thus disappointing the public; (4) of preventing any break in the friendly relations between the two institutions which we heartily desire to see continued permanently.

"Your compliance with this request will be looked upon as a matter of courteous concession and will not be constructed otherwise. And we hereby withdraw any act or utterance of ours that could be interpreted as a judgment of or reflection upon the status of Mr. Brickley or of any other member of your team or of your committee right to act and abide by your rules as to eligibility.

ONE of the greatest home runs on record was made in a recent game at Johnsonburg, Cal., according to "Judge" Parker, former secretary of the Los Angeles club. One of the batters hit the ball over the center fielder's head, but the gardener was fast and relayed it in in time to make the runner slide. He hit the dust hard, kicking up a shower of dust. As the catcher looked down to tag him, he let out a yell and forgot all about the game. The runner's slide had exposed tuppence, which looks suspicing like chalk, and is worth something like $1,500 a ton.

A PITCHER has come up to the big leagues for trial who is taller than Carl Weilman of the St. Louis Browns. He is Edward H. (Slim) Love, a lefthander, who will get a trial by Yonkers in the spring. Love is twenty-four, weighs 200 pounds, and is 6 feet 7½ inches tall. He won about half of his fifty games with the Los Angeles (Pacific Coast League) club.

WITH all the searching for managers for different teams throughout the land, old Mike Donlin seems to have been overlooked. A pepper-box like the ex-giant ought to be valuable to some team. He was a great ball-player in his day; a smart fellow and a likeable character. His fighting instincts would never die out and he would have quite a turnstile value with some minor league outfit at least. Donlin, I understand, doesn't need a baseball job, but he would be a good pilot if any team could land him.

DEACON PHILLIPPE and "Cy" Young were among the greatest of pitchers, but they showed little as managers. Fred Clarke was a great player and he turned out to be a fine manager. Honus Wagner and Tommy Leach, great players and crammed full of baseball lore, might or might not, turn out to be good managers. The idea of Ty Cobb as a manager has raised plenty of laughs, but who knows, years from now, when the Georgia Peach is not spry enough to play, but he may become a pilot?

"BOBBY BYRNE," the Phillies' emergency infielder, is another World's Series bridegrom. He was married the past week in St. Louis, to Miss Laura Shields. The couple is now honeymooning in California.

A FELLOW who is given to statistics tells me that the number of pitchers performing for the Athletics during the past season was twenty-seven. Some bunch, believe me.

Tufts Cripples to Have Mild Practice

Trinity will be Tufts' opponent next Saturday, and, as the most of the Medford players received minor injuries in the game with the Massachusetts Aggies, the coaches plan going very slow in the early scrimmages this week. Guard Alger was badly missed Saturday. He is laid up with a case of la grippe, but confidently hopes to be able to play against Trinity.

Tufts worked the forward pass with phenomenal luck in the contest with the Aggies. All told the eleven gained 155 yards in this manner. Brown has been starring with the pass all Fall and now Wescott is proving a live wire pulling it off. Tufts has completed its at-home schedule. After the Trinity game, comes the Bowdoin battle and then the big game with Springfield Training School at Springfield on Thanksgiving Day.

NEW BRAVE BATS .321 IN COAST LEAGUE

"Bunny" Brief, the White Sox's first sacker at the start of the past campaign, by some fine stick work during the past week, just managed to pass Harry Heilmann in the Pacific Coast League batting list and finishes the season with an average of .366. Brief participated in eighty-four games. Heilmann, who played in ninety-seven contests, before illness caused his retirement, has an average of .365.

Harry Wolter of Los Angeles is next in line, with an average of .361, and Jimmy Johnston, leading the hitters who played consistently through the season, has a mark of .345. Johnston took part in 205 games and leads the base-stealers with eighty-four stolen bases. Johnston made 272 hits, twice than any other Coast-League hitter. He was with the Cubs in 1914.

Jack Ness of Oakland is close behind Johnston and "Buddy" Ryan of Salt Lake follows Ness.

Old "Ping" Bodie tops the list of the Seals, who bore the brunt of the season's work, with an average of .325. His hits include nineteen home runs. Judge Fitzgerald is the next Seal in line, with .320.

Wilhoit, who will join the Braves in the Spring, proved the leading batter on the Vernon team, getting an average of .321, and Gus Fisher, with a mark of .316, topped the Portland aggregation.

The leading run-getter for the season looms up in Harl Maggert of Los Angeles, who has scored 147 times. Schaller scored 144 times and Shinn of Salt Lake 142 times.

Gedeon of Salt Lake made a noteworthy record, having more extra base hits in his credit than any of his rivals. Gedeon drove out nineteen home runs, eleven three-sackers and sixty-four two-base hits. Schaller topped the list punching out home runs, making twenty hits that counted for the full circuit.

Dillon vs. Weinert Tonight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—New York "sports" are taking but passing interest in the Jack Dillon-Charlie Weinert bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. Dillon's Eastern form has been too erratic to suit Broadway. The last time Dillon and Weinert met, Jack won via the knockout route in two rounds.

Harvard Will Be Busy All Week with the Tigers

Pretty nearly all athletic Harvard will be engaged this week in the fascinating hunt to twist the tail of the Tiger.

The Crimson eleven team starts the pawns a-moving against their Princeton rivals Friday evening. The Glee Clubs of both universities will also give a concert that evening at Princeton, and while no duel clash is scheduled, each band can be depended on to do its very best to "show up" its rival.

Harvard's soccer team opens its intercollegiate schedule at Princeton Saturday morning and the Crimson second football team will meet the Tiger scrubs.

Of course, the varsity football game will be the piece de resistance of the week-end. Fully 1,500 undergrads are expected to hit the trail for the Jungle some time Friday.

The students will have a special cheering section and will sing the "Marseillaise," in the meanwhile forming a red "H" on a background of white through the use of handkerchiefs of the two colors.

Bill Bingham, the track captain, will lead the singing, and, with Captain Nash of the nine, Captain Dave Morgan of the crew, and Captain John Morgan of the hockey team, direct the cheering.

Levinsky Signs with Cowler.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—"Battling" Levinsky and Tom Cowler have been matched for the ten-round windup before the Olympic A. C., November 15.

TEN BIKE TEAMS ENTER; EXTRA ONE SOUGHT

ENTRY LIST TO DATE

McNamara and Spears; Grenda and Hill; Verri and Kaiser; Wiley and Linart; Bedell and Cwey; Cameron and Easton; Root and Hunter; Madden and Carman; Dupuy and Morns.

One week from today Boston's annual six-day bicycle race will get under way at the Arena. With the big classic so near, Promoters McLean and Butler will have their hands full this week in making final preparations, which include the building of a new track and the assembling of the riders.

The track will be ready by Friday so as to give the pedalers a chance to get a good workout before the preliminary events which take place the following night. Chief among these races will be the indoor motor-paced championship contest between George Wiley and Victor Linart. There will also be two professional and two amateur events. The racing will start promptly at eight o'clock.

The six-day race starts Monday, at 6 o'clock. Racing will continue until 2 o'clock the next morning. This program will be followed out each day thereafter, excepting Saturday night, when the hours will be from 12:30 to 10 P. M. At this hour the riders will go on for the final half hour's sprints, which will decide the winners.

Although the promoters have signed up, thus far, ten teams, they are all anxious to secure at least three more.

Tigers Trying New Plays for Harvard Battle

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—The Princeton student body was pleased at the team's showing against Williams Saturday and needless to say so are the coaches. Only simple, rudimentary offensive plays were employed and they worked well.

This, coupled with the fact that the team, as a whole, emerged from the game in good physical condition, augurs well for the prospects of a victory against Harvard next Saturday. The showing of Art Blake, a third string quarterback, was especially encouraging to the coaches and it is believed that good use of him can be made in the Harvard and Yale games.

Coach Rush will immediately begin to work on the special plays he has stored up for the Harvard game.

Boston College Brushing Up for Fordham Battle

With three men out as a result of Saturday's game with Holy Cross, Boston College starts today on a week of hard work for the Fordham battle, which is to be played at University Heights, Newton, next Saturday.

Boston College actually gained more ground than Holy Cross, but failed to come through in the "pinches."

The loss of Dullea, the star guard, who had his nose broken, and Kicks, whose head was dented, will be keenly felt by Boston College in its remaining games. "Smack" Lowney, the former Colby halfback, who was seen in action the first time Saturday, made a very favorable impression, and it is highly probable that he will be a regular on the Maroon and Gold the rest of the season.

Every Girl Should Know a Job

Should Be Able to Support Herself If She Has To, Says Phoebe Foster

Miss Phoebe Foster, who is playing in 'Back Home' at the Plymouth Theatre and who says every girl who is sensible will seek to be independent.

"I can smile at the future with a fair amount of confidence and I advise my sisters of the world to place themselves in a like independent position."

PHOEBE FOSTER, who is playing in "Back Home" at the Plymouth, thoroughly believes that every girl should have a regular profession or occupation, not alone to make her of service to the world, but also to provide her with the means to battle for herself against any of the storms that assail all classes. This applies to all women, even to those who enjoying affluence, for in the backgammon of fate even the apparent winner may lose all at one throw of the fickle dice. Independence, perhaps, is the true keyword.

It is not, at least so she declares, that she believes woman should assume the dictatorial position that the advanced feminists proclaim the the gentler sex deserve. She intends at some time to marry, of course, when her destiny prompts, but that is a rather far cry just now for her. The stand she takes is that every girl and woman should have a ready resource, some means of wresting from the world support for herself.

"That is why," she stated rather positively, as a sensible young woman does state, "I chose to take up acting for a profession. It was not that I ever had an all-consuming longing for the stage in the same sense that I have heard so many girls declare. In fact, there were other professions which I thought first of taking up before I actually decided. But I felt that I would be successful in this if I applied myself thoroughly to it.

"I was fortunate from the very first. Not only did I have good teachers and encouraging friends, but I was able to make the opportunity to get a good start. It was hardenly adjunct to the stock company where I had my first drilling, but it was very pleasant hardship. I played all kinds of feminine roles, one a week, until at last I had my New York opportunity. I was in Under Fire, when I was chosen for this role, and now I am nearing the conviction that I am well protected as far as a profession and means of livelihood. So I can smile at the future with a fair amount of confidence, and advise my sisters of the world to place themselves in a like independent position. It is possible for all to attain it if they only will."

The Point of View.

A stout lady at the Zoological Gardens was seeing the lions fed for the first time, and was rather suprised at the limited amount of meat given to them. "That seems to me to be a very small piece of meat for the lion," she said to the keeper at last. "I may seem a small piece to you, mum," said the man, looking at her critically, "but it's heaps for the lion."

Don't Bluff in the Love Game

Sweethearts Should Play With All the Cards on the Table

By DOROTHY DIX

ONE of the most curious things about the love game is that so many men and women try to win it on a bluff.

Girls, in especial, have the mistaken notion that they render themselves more attractive by pretending to be something that they are not. They affect to be fragile and delicate when they are husky and healthy; to be aesthetic and idealized when they are plain matter-of-fact; to be filled with vague poetic yearnings after the whatness-of-the-what, when, in reality, all that they are thinking of is roast beef and potatoes.

And the line of conversation they hand out! It is paralyzing! The ever thrilling subject of cooking is on the carpet. The Young Lady Parson calmly observes that she loathes the sight of a kitchen and that she couldn't boil water without burning it, and that the one thing in life that she is determined never to do is to demean herself by performing any sort of domestic labor.

CAN'T STAND CHILDREN

Or, perchance, the conversation turns upon children. Her exalted highness tears off a shudder and says that she doesn't know how anyone can endure to have dirty, sticky-fingered, troublesome brats hanging about her, and that, for her part, she would go farther to avoid meeting a baby than she would a bear.

Or, it may be, that the discussion flits to modern extravagance and little Miss Spendit expresses the opinion that the very least that any one can live on with any sort of decent comfort is twenty thousand a year, and that's genteel poverty.

To hear her talk you would think that the girl was a useless, brainless, heartless parasite, the kind of a woman who values everything by the dollar mark, and that a man had better tie a stone about his neck and cast himself into the sea than to marry her.

But he not deceived. The reverse of this is the truth. In reality the girl is a sensible, warm-hearted, competent little person who will make the best sort of a wife and mother. Nobody knows why she does it, but for some inexplicable reason, she thinks that she makes herself attractive by assuming what she considered to be a grand and romantic attitude toward life.

THEY KISS THEY TELL

It's a strange phase of feminine psychology, but we are all familiar with it. We have all heard angel-faced young girls calmly lie as they told that they paid $150 for dresses that they made themselves, and that didn't cost $15; that they didn't know whether you bought a quarter of lamb or a whole sheep for dinner when they could beat the butcher down to the last cent on a cheap cut, and they wouldn't think of marrying a man who didn't have a limousine, when they would have bumped at any good young fellow with street car tickets.

They are fools, these girls, in thinking that they can make themselves desirable to men by pretending that they are helpless dolls or extravagant fashion plates. That's not the sort of wives men are looking for, and many a girl's affectation has cost her a good husband.

When a man thinks about getting married he is bound to figure the price, because it's up to him to pay the bills. He could afford to marry if he could get a wife who would be a helpmeet, who could cook and sew, and manage a house thriftily, and who wouldn't expect to wear imported hats and gowns. But when he hears a girl talk about a $200 dress being a bargain he gets cold feet and shoots away from the altar.

Men are quite as silly and even more criminal in the bluff that they put in about making more money than they do, for when a girl marries a man under the delusion that she is going to share with him in a champagne income it is a bitter and blighting disappointment to find out that he hasn't even the price of hydrant water.

One of the main reasons why there are so many divorces in this country is because it is considered indelicate to mention the subject of money before marriage, though after marriage that is bound to be the chief topic of conversation.

This isn't giving the girl a square deal. Before he marries her, a man should make it perfectly plain to a woman exactly how much money he makes and what sacrifices she will have to make if she marries him. Then she can take him, or leave him, as she likes.

There should be no bluffing in the love game. It should be played with all the cards, face up, on the table.

The Retort Witty

A wealthy but miserly baronet was coldly once having a magnificently decorated dinner table whilst his viands were very few. A celebrated wit was invited to dine on a certain occasion, and the host asked him if he didn't think the room elegant.

"Yes," was the reply, "But it is not quite to my taste."

"And what changes would you make?" asked the host.

"Well, answered the wit, "if this were my house, you know, I would have," looking at a ceiling, "less gilding and," here he glanced furtively at the dining table, "more carving."

Rival Authorities

Two little girls had an altercation. Lucy had told Ellen what she called "a little fib." "A fib is the same thing as a story," explained Ellen, "and a story is the same thing as a lie." "No," argued Lucy, "it's not." "Yes," it is," insisted Ellen; "because my father said so" and my father is a college professor, and he knows everything." "I don't care if he is a professor," said Lucy. "My father is an estate agent, and he knows a lot more about lying than your father!"

The Wonderful Adventures of the Sunshine Family in the Land of Make-Believe

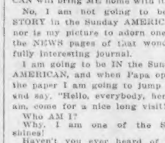
Copyright, 1915, New England Newspaper Publishing Company

THE Sunshines are members of an ages-old family of pasteboard dolls, who, one after another, are coming to visit every little girl and every little boy in New England whose Papa will please remember to bring home a copy of the Sunday AMERICAN. The Sunshines live in forest, field and garden. They are on intimate terms with everybody in Mother Goose. They know the birds and the flowers—to talk to. When they come to your house they will come supplied with clothing of the latest fashion, but you MUST help them to dress.

This story—of the Adventures of the Sunshine Family—is told by the Mother-Doll, Patience Sunshine. The other members of the family, in the order of their appearance with successive numbers of the Sunday AMERICAN, are: Martha Sunshine, Peter Sunshine, her brother, little Bob Sunshine, the baby, and George Washington Sunshine, the father.

By PATIENCE SUNSHINE.

Copyright, 1915, New England Newspaper Publishing Company.



I EXPECT that, when next Sunday comes, the happiest boys and girls in all the world will be the boys and girls whose papas remember to bring home a copy of the Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Because every papa who brings home next Sunday's AMERICAN will bring ME home with it.

No, I am not going to be a STORY in the Sunday AMERICAN, nor is my picture to adorn one of the NEWS pages of that wonderfully interesting journal.

I am going to be IN the Sunday AMERICAN, and when Papa opens the paper I am going to jump out and say, "Hello, everybody, here I am, come for a nice long visit!"

Who AM I?

Why, I am one of the Sunshines!

Haven't you ever heard of the Sunshines? My goodness, me! I am George Washington Sunshine's little wife. I am PETER Sunshine's mamma, and MARTHA Sunshine's mamma, and little Bob Sunshine's mamma. We are the Sunshines. I thought EVERYBODY knew.

I love all the little girls except those that have to be waited upon hand and foot, like the lily-white princess in a fairy tale. I like BOYS until they get into algebra. I DETEST algebra, always did. Ah ahh always WILL.

You will know more about me on Sunday, when I pop right out of the paper and say "Hello!" "I may seem a small piece to you, mum," said the man, looking at her critically, "but it's heaps for the lion."

Am I pretty?

No; I am no more a fairy than ALICE, who had those wonderful adventures, and whom I know quite well, by the way. I know ALICE, in fact, long before the adventures; and I MUST say I think the girl has been spoiled by notoriety.

I am no more a fairy than Old King Cole, little Jack Horner, Tom, the Piper's son, the frog that lived in a well, Simple Simon, or the man in the moon.

I am no more a fairy, for that matter, than Mother Goose, or Punch and Judy, or little Bo-Peep, or Mistress Mary, or the Queen of Hearts, or Snow White and Rose Red.

ALL of these ladies and gentlemen are among my dearest friends, SOME of them, in fact, are with me as I write and ask to be remembered to you. If they would only talk one at a time, I should try to give you their messages.

Says Snow White: "There's a dear little girl in Cambridge I should like to be remembered to." "A most particular friend of mine," little Jack Horner says, "is a sick boy in Dorchester. I SHOULD like to have him have some sunshine." Little Bo-Peep says to "Tell Marjorie, in Brookline, yes, the sheep DID come home, after a time, and DID bring their tails behind them."

But it is simply impossible to give you ALL their messages today, on account of Simple Simon, who says HE knows everybody, and everybody knows HIM, and so give everybody HIS love.

I shall tell you more about them tomorrow and I will also explain, tomorrow, how I came to make up my mind to visit you.

I have only one request to make.

Most unfortunately, I have never learned HOW to use my hands. Therefore, I want everybody to be positive to ask Mamma to be sure and have the shears close at hand when the Sunday AMERICAN comes in. I am afraid I shall be fastened pretty securely into the exceptionally heavy paper in which I travel, and somebody MUST give me a hand.

My wardrobe will be the latest word in the newest fashions and, if I do say it myself, I shall be prepared to go with my friends to any sort of party.

At first, I shall be a bit LONESOME, no doubt, but if YOU like me, and I like you—there need be no fear as to that, my dears, unless you know algebra, which I despise—if my visit is mutually happy, I shall send for Martha, Peter, and the baby, and "G. W." (my husband, George Washington Sunshine).

And I am in a material hurry to move to your house just as quickly as I can. To tell the truth, I am visiting the Old Woman Who Lives in a Shoe, and, take it with all HER children, and the little Sunshines, there is scarcely room enough to turn around.

If you will meet me right here I shall tell you more, tomorrow.

Anecdotes of the Famous

DURING the campaign in the Soudan Lord Kitchener was accompanied by a telegrapher, who one day informed him that his mother was ill and in want. The man applied for his discharge, and shortly afterward Kitchener sent for him.

"Don't you think you could help your mother without going home?" he asked.

"I'd rather go home, sir," was the reply.

"Oh, very well," said Kitchener; "you know your own business best. That will do."

The telegrapher retired, thinking he had offended his chief, and when the day came for him to leave he went to say "Good-by" to Kitchener, feeling far from comfortable. Kitchener received him somewhat coldly.

"Here, just take this note to the paymaster for me," he ordered as the man was leaving.

The telegrapher did as he was bid, and was walking away when the paymaster stopped him.

"Tha—tha give you this by Lord Kitchener's orders," he said.

"This" was the equal in Egyptian money to £50.

The "Father of the English Turf," Mr. George Hodgman, has just died at eighty-nine. Besides his enthusiasm for sport the deceased gentleman was noted for his resemblance to Mr. Gladstone, and his likeness was the occasion of a practical joke, which had the amusing sequel of winning for the G. O. M. the reputation of having inside knowledge of the doings of the English turf.

Mr. Hodgman was passing through Edinburgh when his friends, for fun, sent round word to Waverley Station that Mr. Gladstone was in the train. The crowd flocked round Mr. Hodgman's carriage and then, misled perhaps by the dim light, concluded that the sportsman really was the statesman, and cheered.

Just as the train moved out Mr. Hodgman thrust his hand out of the window, waved his hand, and shouted gaily: "Thank you, gentlemen! So-and-so will win the Clearwitch stakes." And as it did, the sport-loving British public, who were not enlightened as to how they were duped till some time later, concluded that Gladstone was a tipster well worth following, and esteemed him accordingly.

Beyond His Power

A certain miser who possessed marvelous powers of mimicry, although he earned big money, was always very hard up. One day he invited his tailor to ask him for a little more time to pay an account which had been owing for three years. While he was there a customer entered the shop and, after asking for a suit, paid at once. Then the miser heaved a sigh of pain. "What is the matter?" asked the tailor. "Alas!" replying the actor, sighing again, "that is a man I shall never be able to imitate!"

What Happened to Jane

She Ponders on a New Development

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VXII.

Copyright, 1915, Star Co.

MRS. HARDY looked up anxiously as Jane came out upon the veranda.

"I was wondering where you were," she said. "I was afraid you might be feeling sick. Mr. Reeves was just asking what had become of you."

The girl tried to smile.

"I—I—was talking to father when you called me," she explained.

Sinking into a chair, she sat dumbly miserable. Had her father really spoken those words that still rang in her ears? She felt as if she must have been dreaming as she watched Ezra return to the group he had left so short a while ago, and, sitting down by Augustus Reeves, begin to talk about the borers in his fruit trees.

For some time nobody spoke directly to her, and she listened to the conversation as one half-asleep might listen to talk in another room. The moon was rising slowly and calmly above the treetops, and she watched it fixedly. Was it possible that this awful thing had been said to her since Ned and she had watched that moon—"our old moon"—as he had called it? He had said that it was smiling on him and her. It was not smiling now, but gazing unperturbably on all the joy and suffering in the world.

She clasped her hands together tightly as she heard a train whistle up the valley. That was Ned's train. She listened as it slowed up at the station, and stood, panting, while the passengers boarded it. Then it began to puf, slowly at first, then more rapidly, until the sound became once more a continuous roar. Another warning whistle from the locomotive as it approached a crossing a mile down the road—then only a confused murmur in the distance, and all was still as before.

HER FATHER MAKES AN EXCUSE TO GO

Ezra Hardy rose stiffly. "Ma," he said. "There's a little bit of mending I'd like you to do for me tonight. Suppose we leave the men to talk to Gus for awhile and you attend to that for me. We'll be out in about a half-hour," he informed his guest.

"That's all right—take your own time," Augustus said. "Jane and I'll get along all right by ourselves, I guess."

Mrs. Hardy said nothing, and in the moonlight the girl fancied that her mother's smile there grew a shade paler.

Jane rose as her parents stood up. When they had gone indoors she sat down again.

She remained silent as Augustus Reeves began his speech, first getting up and clearing his throat as he did so, and then launching boldly out upon the veranda.

"When I have anything special to say, I like to know that there isn't anybody listening," he explained.

She had an impulse to resent his words, to tell him that her people would not sink to the ignominy of eavesdropping—but as she recalled what her father had said to her only a little while ago, she felt that she did not know what he might stoop to. She had never loved her father as she loved her mother—but she been fond of him, and always respected him. And this never known him until now?

She brought her mind with an effort back to what Augustus Reeves was saying. It was, at first, just what he had told her often before. He stood high in the community, he had prospered in his line of farm, a good income, and was making money from several excellent investments, and was lonely.

Her heart gave a sickening throb. If she only dared to run away—dared to scream—dared to tell him to stop!

"It's many years now since my wife died," he went on. "And I feel very much the need of a wife. You would suit me in many ways, Jane. Will you marry me?"

He leaned towards her and took her hand in his. She snatched it away. His touch made her shudder.

"I—I—can't," she gasped. "I don't love you!"

SMILES AS AT AN IGNORANT CHILD

He smiled as he might have smiled at an ignorant child.

"I don't expect that you do love me yet, Jane," he rejoined. "But you will soon. I don't think that I would care especially for any young woman who would say that she loved a man until she was quite sure that he wanted her. I do want you, and I believe you'll suit me very well. You have faults, of course—but who hasn't? And I'm sure that when you see how well I can provide for you, when you change from this house to my big one, when you see how nice everything is there—you'll be glad you took the step—glad and thankful. I know you've got quite a lot to learn, but Mary—that is Mrs. Baird, my housekeeper—will teach you."

The world swam around his listener. He talked as if he had settled everything in spite of her. Could it be that he had dared speak in this way of her to her father? Was she not to be considered in this matter—was her life to be arranged for her, and was she to be disposed of, or purchased, as if she were a horse or some other dumb creature that this man had decided to own?

She thought of Edward Banderson. He was her refuge—yet her tongue refused to speak of him to this man. She could not name her love—the most beautiful thing in her life—in this gross presence. But she must say something—something to let him know that she could not listen to anything else he had to say—that she could never, never marry him.

"You—you—don't understand," she stammered. "I—I—could not marry any one I did not love. And —besides—I—I—have—Oh, it's impossible, Mr. Reeves—quite impossible!"

She sprang to her feet as he tried again to seize her hand, and, eluding him, without a backward glance went swiftly into the house and up to her room.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

She looks dreamily at the moon.

The Japanese grow a plant which furnishes a sort of vegetable leather. and Avon Streets, out of gratitude, to thank him for the benefits they have received from the use of Plant Juice and to congratulate him on the splendid success he has had in Boston with this great remedy.

Only the other day Miss Katherine Sullivan, who resides at 24 Worcester Street, and is a well-known and popular young lady of this city, gave the following signed statement, what Plant Juice had done for her. She said:

"For over ten years I have suffered with stomach trouble, which took the form of indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would ferment and cause gas and bloating with great distress after eating and I actually lost flesh. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and was so tired in the morning I felt as if I could not get through the day; had no appetite, headaches, my circulation was poor, had rheumatism in my knees, which were so stiff at the joints I could scarcely bend them. A friend told me about Plant Juice and I decided to try it, and I am happy to state that after taking several bottles it has cured me. I have no more trouble with rheumatism, my stomach is in fine condition and I am feeling like a new woman in every respect. I think Plant Juice is a grand medicine."

Plant Juice acts like magic to stomach trouble, gas, fermentation, dizziness, heavy eyes, coated tongue, offensive breath and so relieving. It alkalizes and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects disorded condition of the liver and kidneys and banishes rheumatism from the system.—Advertisement.

GREAT 'SOLDIER BOY' SONG HAS THE REAL HEART NOTE

Chorus of "Soldier Boy" song and Billy Gleason, who sings it at the Beacon Theatre.

AT last the great soldier song has been written. The song everybody has been waiting for. It is called "Soldier Boy," and as fast as it can be rushed off the printing presses it will be introduced to the entire world.

The introduction of "Soldier Boy" will come about in a way that no other song has ever enjoyed. It is to be published simultaneously in the United States, Canada, England, Germany, France, Russia, Italy, Austria and several other countries.

Nationality publishers of copyright songs in other countries, but so far as is known no other song has ever before been printed for such general distribution and publication in more than one country at a time.

"Soldier Boy" enjoys most remarkable possibilities, because the girls of Germany can sing it to their boys, without a change of a word, just as happily as the maids of England can sing it to their defenders.

And, strangely, it is in the United States, the last country now involved in the war, that the song has had its inception.

Theodore Morse, the writer of "Soldier Boy," was at Plattsburg during the Business Men's Encampment when the idea for the song came to him. He says that when he saw some of the nation's leading men in the uniform of privates he realized for the first time how general must be the grief of women in parting from their men who go away perhaps never to come back.

He says that he didn't have American soldiers in mind particularly, but that he aimed to write a song that would have beart interest in it, to show the sorrow of a woman parting from the one she loved most.

How well Morse has succeeded has come to the attention of the publishers in a peculiar way. Morse actually wrote the song in Canada while on a vacation, and to try it out he had it sung in the theatres of several small Canadian towns. Each of those towns sent its quota of men to the war, and it is said that when the song was heard the audience rose and cheered and yelled with joy.

The fact that the song is purely neutral and absolutely international would indicate that it is likely to be a big hit. The point is made that it is more than national in that it is for all humanity wherever there is a man who may shoulder, or some time have to shoulder, a musket for the defence of his country, and this means the United States as well as the other countries.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in the last hour with rails higher and coppers mixed. War industrials were at best low for the day. Bethlehem Steel had sold at 490, 150 below its highest record price. It declined 14¾ today from its closing price on Saturday on a few transactions. Short covering was one reason for the advance of Canadian Pacific, but tonnage prospects was a factor. Hesitant bids were given chiefly to realize on sales. Among issues to sell at record high during the day were Ohio and Willys-Overland.

At 2.15 gains in New York included American Sugar 1¾, American Telephone 1¼, Willys-Overland 1¾, Beet Sugar ¾, Utah Copper 1, Union Pacific ¾, Rock Island ¾, Erie ¼, Union Pacific ¾, Southern Pacific ¾, Reading ¾, Northern Pacific ¾, New Haven ¾, New York Central ¼, Canadian Pacific ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio and Atchison ½.

Among declines were Allis-Chalmers 1¾, American Can ¾, American Smelting ¼, Anaconda ⅝, Tennessee ¼, U. S. Steel ⅜, Car & Foundry 2¾, International Harvester ¾, Baldwin 1, Bethlehem 7¼, Colorado Fuel ¾, Crucible 2¾, Maxwell 4¼, General Electric 1¾, Studebaker ¾, Westinghouse 1⅝ and Chesapeake & Ohio ⅝.

Nearer the close Missouri Pacific was up 3 and Missouri, Kansas & Texas 1¾. Among gains in Boston shares Lamson ¼, Copper Range ¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅝, Granby ¼, Greene-Cananea ⅝, Isle Royale ¼, Mass Mining ¼, Mohawk ¼, North Butte ¼, North Lake ¼, Old Dominion ¼, Shattuck-Arizona 2¼, Superior ½, St. Mary's ⅛, Tamarack ⅛, Utah Mining ¼, Atlantic Gulf common 2, preferred 1½, Elevated ⅛ and Boston & Maine ⅛.

Declines included Amoskeag ¼, Woolen preferred ½, Butte & Superior ⅛, Isle Royale ¼, North Butte ⅛, Trinity ⅛, Wolverine ⅛, U. S. Smelting ⅛ and United Fruit ¼. New Haven and American Zinc were unchanged.

RAILROADS STILL A FEATURE.

The New York market had a firm tone at the start with rails ranging higher and some coppers in demand. A few war industrials were a little lower, but other gains or losses were large, taking the list as a whole. There was almost immediate profit taking where there was no buying, but at the end of half an hour prices ranged upward despite caution on the eve of election day. It was an orderly market with sentiment bullish and public interest, as was expected. Strength of rails was largely due to Pennsylvania and New York Central earnings for September. Pennsylvania ex-dividend sold at the highest this year. Canadian Pacific advanced more than ten points during the morning. Norfolk & Western, which for some made good gains, the former attaining a record high. Central Leather sold at a high record price by reason of dividend rumors. A number of roads were at their highest for this year to date. There was demand for Great Northern. Tariff prospects helped American Sugar. U. S. Steel continued to advance, selling at a new high since 1913. There were realization periods during the forenoon when some shares receded, but the market had a good tone on the whole from opening until afternoon. The weakest class was war and coppers. The drift in speculation continued towards rails and coppers.

Foreign exchange ruled weaker. The stock market was active, especially in the final hour. During the morning transactions totalled around 525,000 shares. All reports about trade conditions were encouraging. There has never been such demand for steel and iron products. The highest first gold imports total $235,000,000 and more are coming. Gold arrives from Chicago as well as New York. Back of the advance stocks are many conditions favorable beyond precedent.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE;
OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

WHY THE AMERICAN FAVORS THE RE-ELECTION OF GOV. DAVID I. WALSH

Together with a Statement of the Reason This Newspaper OPPOSES the Election of Mr. McCall. In Each Case It Is Because of the Gentleman's PUBLIC Record

To those readers of the AMERICAN who have not made up their minds how they shall vote for Governor tomorrow, the AMERICAN presents a brief review of the reasons which have led this newspaper to support Governor Walsh for re-election.

They are not partisan reasons. The AMERICAN does not and has not supported Governor Walsh because he is the Democratic candidate. The AMERICAN does not support Democratic candidates through thick and thin, right or wrong. This newspaper believes that Mr. Henry C. Attwill, the Republican candidate for Attorney-General, the next most important office to that of Governor, ought to be re-elected for the same reasons that make us support Governor Walsh.

Before discussing Governor Walsh's achievements in office, the AMERICAN would like to review very respectfully the record of his Republican opponent, Mr. Samuel W. McCall. Mr. McCall's desirability or undesirability in this office is a consideration no less important than the Governor's record. We wish to speak respectfully of Mr. McCall because at no point in the criticism of his public career is it possible to show that his shortcomings have been faults of conscience. In the judgment of the AMERICAN his record is bad, because he has entertained an erroneous point of view on nearly all public questions. This makes him scarcely less undesirable to those who do not agree with his political tendencies, because what we want is a public servant and not a public master—a man who will do what we in our mature judgment believe ought to be done, and not a man who insists upon doing what HE thinks is right, whether we believe it to be right or wrong.

Almost at the beginning of his national political career Mr. McCall joined the forces represented by Speaker Cannon during the years when Cannonism and the Cannon gag rules made the House of Representatives a by-word in the nation and in the world, and a subject of criticism by students of politics and government throughout the world—an anomaly in a popular government, a mockery as a deliberative body, a travesty upon representative institutions. All during this period when the railroads and protected industries and the special interests were indulging in their highest orgies, with every arm of the government palsied and with the people's representatives in Congress bound and gagged by Cannon's rules, Mr. McCall was a faithful janizary of Cannon and the still more powerful interests which Cannon represented in the House of Representatives and Aldrich represented in the Senate. When at last the Republicans of the Middle West revolted against this un-American tyranny, with Congressman Gardner of Massachusetts and other liberal Republicans joining in the revolt, Mr. McCall was conspicuous by his absence from the ranks of these upstanding men, who foresaw the ruin of their party and the injury to their country by the continuance of a practice which made the popular branch of the national government a mere registry of the will of Wall Street, the place where were legalized the decrees of the counting-house and the railroad office. So bound down was Mr. McCall to this reactionary regime that he supported it in matters which those who respect him must believe caused him great uneasiness of conscience.

Passing by the earlier instances of Mr. McCall's reactionary point of view, it is sufficient to consider a few of the last important acts of his career in office. The Payne-Aldrich bill, which so surprised and shocked the country, Mr. McCall supported in all of its important roll calls. The very worst feature of the bill, Schedule "K," which even President Taft himself was obliged to denounce as indefensible, Mr. McCall voted for, though he afterwards admitted that he knew it was wrong and that it was being dictated by a band of woolen manufacturers, who, by its provisions, were seeking to tax the country for their own pockets. Mr. McCall defended his vote on all the sections of this bill by the plea that he had to vote for them all, because he had to vote for the bill in its entirety. But this was a disingenuous excuse, for he voted in favor of the Cannon gag rule which prohibited voting upon the separate schedules of the bill.

It will be recalled that President Taft had as a Secretary of the Interior one Ballinger, and that around Ballinger arose a great public scandal, which ended in driving him out of office. Rumors of the impropriety of Ballinger's conduct were persistent in Washington for a long time before they became public property. It was known that in Alaska there existed vast coal fields of incalculable wealth and importance to this country. They belonged to the nation as a whole, and they had not been exploited by private individuals. Under President Roosevelt the country had awakened to the necessity of conserving the national resources, and with President Roosevelt's support a great many independent and fearless men, like Gifford Pinchot and Glavis, entered the public service to watch out for these national resources. There was a combination known as the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate of American and English financiers, who had a railroad within thirty miles of this great coal field. Rumors flew about Washington that this syndicate had entered into a conspiracy, with the assistance of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, to obtain possession of these coal fields by fraudulent entries and forgeries.

Finally, on January 7, 1910, on the floor of the House of Representatives, Congressman Gilbert N. Hitchcock, of Nebraska, and now United States Senator, made a deliberate charge of CRIMINAL misconduct against Secretary Ballinger. It involved a consideration of tremendous interest to this country, because it not only involved the character of a high public official, but it involved a great public domain in Alaska. The charges against Ballinger had been made by Mr. Glavis, a special agent of the Department of the Interior. In closing his speech in favor of an investigation of those charges, Congressman Hitchcock said to the House of Representatives:

> "What protection is there for an humble and honest employe (Glavis) who becomes aware of frauds and exposes them to save the public domain if this responsible House does not give that protection?"

Another distinguished Congressman said on the floor during this debate:

> "Now that is the charge; that charge involves MORAL TURPITUDE."

Notwithstanding these charges, made by responsible men, Mr. McCall voted AGAINST the order to hold an investigation. Thus it was in spite of Mr. McCall that Ballinger was driven from office, Glavis and Pinchot were honored by the public opinion of the country, and the public domain, threatened by the misbehavior of Ballinger, was saved to the nation.

It may be hard for a stranger, who reads the record of Mr. McCall on the Ballinger investigation, to believe that he was honest, or that he had any decent public ideals. But the habit of believing that big business is ALWAYS right, and that the bigger it is and the bolder it is the more likely it is to be right, the habit of being strong on the stronger side, the habit of believing that prosperity in the country should begin at the top and percolate down to the bottom, was so fixed in the mind of Mr. McCall that it is conceivable to his friends that he voted against the investigation of Ballinger in the purblind belief that he ought not to disturb big business.

When the progressive Republicans, under the leadership of President Roosevelt, sought to extend the power of the national government over the railroads, in order to prevent the kind of mismanagement which has characterized our great railroads for twenty-five years, Mr. McCall was one of the seven loyal members of Congress who stood WITH the railroads AGAINST the President. Blind again to the logic of events he could not see that the government must either regulate the railroads completely or we must have public ownership.

A member of the very innermost shrine of reactionaries, Mr. McCall believed that the railroads should be allowed to run amuck destroying their substance; wasting the money of their stockholders; killing and maiming five times more people in this country, in proportion to the number of passengers, than any other railroads in any other country in the world; rendering worse and worse service to the shippers and business men in spite of the advance in the arts and sciences; the corrupt and incompetent management from the stock tickers in Wall Street setting at naught the improvements by the inventive genius of the age, the increased power of our bigger locomotives and increased size of our cars, our automatic brakes and couplers, our automatic signals, and our improved machinery for handling freight.

The 21,000 stockholders in Massachusetts who have lost their money in the New England railroads during this period, the thousands of shippers, big and little, who have seen their business harmed by the careless and dilatory handling of their freight; the passengers, who find their carfares increasing when they ought to be decreasing; the honest citizen, who wants a free government and things done in the open, who reads these revelations of railroad corruption and domination in our politics which are being made every day in the criminal trial of the New Haven directors in New York and the investigation of the Boston & Maine's expenses in New Hampshire—these stockholders, business men and passengers need not assume that Mr. McCall was dishonest when he stood with the railroads to let their orgies continue. It is sufficient for them to know that he DID stand for the railroads, and that he has not since recanted or apologized; and there is nothing in his subsequent record which gives us the slightest ground to believe that, if he is elected Governor, his attitude on all the railroad problems that will be pressing next year will be in any respect changed.

His opposition to the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people, a great reform which has just come to pass; his opposition to the Initiative and Referendum, and his attitude on scores of other questions are but accumulative evidence of the reactionary view which Mr. McCall takes of public problems in this country.

Forward-looking men do not want such a man elected this year to the Chief Magistracy of Massachusetts for both national and local reasons. Next year will come the great test whether or not the progressive movement, which kindled the beacon lights of progress throughout the country, ever since President Roosevelt came into power, and which was too strong for President Taft's reaction, is to be a permanent tendency in the country or merely an ephemeral thing, a gust of wind, a flash of heat lightning gone before it avails anything.

The "old gang," as Charles Sumner Bird characterized them, have not given up hope that they will once more be astride a victorious and unregenerated Republican party. They have clung to the control of the Republican organization in Massachusetts awaiting the day when the progressive sentiment should be sufficiently disorganized to permit their unregenerate party to return to power again.

As Mr. Filene, the Boston merchant, has truthfully said, in the reasons which he publicly gave for supporting Governor Walsh, the victory of such a man as Mr. McCall, with the old gang associated behind him, will be hailed throughout the country as the repudiation by Massachusetts of her progressive sentiment.

Massachusetts is the home of progress. It was in her streets and fields that the first blood of the progressive Revolution was spilled. It was in her public schools and in her public prints that the progressive sentiment against the institution of slavery found its first great development. They were her orators, poets and preachers who expounded the doctrine that the Republic could not last which was half free and half slave, and who made Abraham Lincoln possible. Massachusetts has and deserves to have a moral leadership in this country. As the Springfield Republican wisely declared last week in its editorial declaration for Governor Walsh, the reactionaries are fighting this campaign as a preparation for the great "offensive drive" against the progressive forces in this country next year.

Mr. McCall's record bears also upon the local issues. We have made great progress in progressive reforms in Massachusetts during five years. We have the taxation question made acute by the pending constitutional amendment. By that amendment, unless we have a Governor who will protect the great mass of the people against organized privilege, we are threatened with discrimination against people who own their homes and other property which cannot be concealed in favor of those rich citizens who own stocks and bonds and other intangible property which can be concealed. We have the railroad question with us in all its perplexity and difficulty. We have the demands of both railroads and street railways for increases in fares and freight rates. We have discontented labor in the public service corporations, strikes and threats of strikes, and lockouts. On all these and many other such questions it is of the utmost importance that the man who faces them shall have the right point of view, and who believes that the interests of the majority is the interest which the government should consult.

We KNOW how Governor Walsh stands on all these questions. We know that he has shown himself willing to co-operate with the railroads when their demands were legitimate, and we know that when they cunningly injected into the New Haven Validation Bill an endorsement by Massachusetts of the so-called unearned increment claim of the railroads, the Governor promptly vetoed the bill and put Massachusetts on record, so far as his action could do so, against the most far-reaching and dangerous contention which the railroads of the country have ever deliberately made. We know the Governor's attitude on taxation questions, for we know what he recommended to the Legislature and what every man who respected his opinion in the Legislature supported. We know that the Governor is determined to stop tax dodging, and to make the rich men of the State bear their fair share of the support of the government. We know how he helped to reduce the cost of life insurance in the State, and how he increased the compensation to injured workmen so that these workmen have received this year almost a million dollars more than they would have received without his recommendation. We know how he stood out against the attempt to drive the small milk producer out of Massachusetts under the pretense of a pure milk bill. We know his attitude against the attempt of the street railways to increase their carfares. We know how he helped to put under the State control the companies producing electricity from water power; how he helped to enlarge the rights of the cities and towns to purchase their gas and electric light plants without being "held up," as the old law made it possible for the existing gas and electric light plants to hold them up. We know how he is trying to give the ambitious but poor boy, who has only his evenings for study, a college education at the State's expense.

We know that while Mr. McCall has during twenty years of public life "hitched his wagon to a rock in the roadside," Governor Walsh has striven to "hitch HIS wagon to a star."
